

State-Run Savings Bond Drawing Highlights U.K. Budget

$2,800 Top Prize In 'No One Loses' Government Scheme

(AP and UP Dispatches)

HOW SAVINGS DRAW WORKS

People will buy savings bonds in £1 ($2.80) denominations. These bonds will not bear interest.

After a certain period the holders of bonds will be eligible for drawings.

Every three months drawings will be held. Winners will get prizes up to £1,000 ($2,800).

Bonds will retain their face value, cashable at any time.

Winds Only Question Mark In Strait Bid

Winds in Juan de Fuca Strait are all that can stand in the way of the season's first crack at a marathon swimming to Port Angeles Wednesday morning.

Big Ben Laughren was given an encouraging nod from the weather forecaster at noon today with a prediction for fair weather on the swimmer's attempt from Gonzales Point at 5:30 a.m.

"Conditions are going to be favorable, providing the high-pressure ridge we are in holds our good weather."

The over-all picture is for gradual deterioration of conditions through the week.

LIGHT WINDS

"We expect light easterly winds at 10-12 miles an hour, possibly a little stronger," said forecaster Bill Mackie.

Laughren and his trainer Ove Witt are ready for the attempt. "All we need is a little co-operation from Mother Nature and we'll do the rest," said the trainer.

He has his coaching dinghy ready to load with food and equipment weighing almost as much as himself. Ben will be fed from a stock of 10 chocolate bars, two quarts of hot chocolate, a gallon of pure water and a gallon of orange juice mixed with syrup and dextrose.

From time to time he will nibble on sugar cubes handed to him from the boat. Liquids will be passed on the end of a pole fitted with a wire noose to grasp bottles.

Navigator Bill Teller, skipper of the pilot vessel Black Dog, will steer a course around the east side of Trial Island, following the ebb tide to a point north and west of Ediz Hook.

FLOOD TIDE

From there, the swimmer will be carried on the flood tide in a southeasterly direction toward the hook, if all goes well.

Total time is expected to be no longer than 10 hours.

If weather intervenes Wednesday, a second attempt is slated for 8:30 a.m. Thursday. Good tides are available until April 24, but swims tries after Thursday will have to be made at night to take advantage of the best ebbs.

Canada May Sell Israel Sabre Jets

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson hinted today that Canada may fill an Israeli request for 20 Sabre jet fighters.

He told the Commons external affairs committee that Canada has been informed by Britain, the U.S. and France that the Big Three would have no objection to such an arms shipment.

He launched the scheme in his first budget presentation to the House of Commons since becoming chancellor of the exchequer last year.

The budget contained no income-tax increases but concentrated on ways to induce Britons to "save more." Macmillan's target is to effect savings of "not less than £100,000,000 in the current year."

The draw would be run on £1 savings bonds.

Holders of the bonds would take part in a draw every three months, with big top prizes, up to £1,000 ($2,800), and a number of smaller prizes.

The premium bonds would be cashable at any time, but would not carry interest.

Instead, the bond numbers will be drawn in a lottery and the usual rate of interest shared among the winners of the draw.

He said a limit, to be announced later, will be placed on the number of bonds any individual can hold.

The holder will be eligible for the tax-free prize as long as he continues to hold the bond.

In announcing the spectacular and unprecedented plan, Macmillan said:

"This is something absolutely new. It is not gambling, for the subscriber cannot lose. The saver in the bond which I propose is saving his money."

Every bond buyer will get back his principal, the chancellor said. All that is at stake is the interest.

He said the plan is designed to encourage "the practice of saving and thrift by those members of the community who are not attracted by the reward of interest but do respond to the incentive of fortune."

STARTS IN YEAR

The chancellor added that he doubted whether the plan would be ready to go into operation this year or "the beginning of 1957."

Macmillan's state-bond lottery plan follows roughly the pattern of Soviet Russia's lottery savings programs. A number of European countries run ordinary lotteries.

To encourage smaller savers the chancellor announced that better interest rates would be paid to holders of government national savings certificates after Aug. 1.

The chancellor proposed to exempt from income tax the first £15 of income derived from deposits in post office or trustees savings banks.

Macmillan said that for the time being the "credit squeeze"—making it more difficult to borrow money—must continue.

Macmillan lopped off the last of the state subsidy on bread, thus forcing the price of a 14-pound loaf up to ninepence halfpenny (11½ cents).

Other highlights of the budget: Restrictions on the capital borrowing powers of nationalized industries—railroads, coal, electricity and others.

Income tax reliefs on earnings from deposit bank accounts.

Tax on tobacco will be increased, raising the price of a pack of cigarettes from three shillings and eight pence to three shillings and 10 pence (53½ cents). Leaf tobacco, affecting cigar and pipe smokers, will go up three shillings a pound.

The tax on distributed and undistributed profits is increased to 30 per cent and 3 per cent respectively.

The family allowance—money paid by the government to parents on a basis of the number of their children—will be increased so that for third and subsequent children parents will receive 10 shillings instead of eight shillings a week per child.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

O GOD, we thank Thee for this day with its opportunities and its tribulations. We are grateful for the wisdom of Christ, which enables us to turn problems into privileges. Let us know that every question which disturbs us is primarily a moral question, and that we can never be wrong by deciding for the right; through our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, Amen.

GRACIOUS GRACE WINS MONACO

Difference in height of movie star Grace Kelly and her husband-to-be, Prince Rainier III of Monaco, is emphasized in this photo of pair saluting crowd from balcony. U.K. STREETS SEALED OFF FOR RUSSIANS

All Traffic To Be Barred

LONDON (UP)—Jittery British police today barred all traffic from London streets on which Nikita S. Khrushchev and Nikolai Bulganin will travel when they arrive Wednesday.

The new order was the latest link in a steel chain of security that will guard the incoming route of the two Russian leaders against assassination.

Portsmouth naval base will be sealed when their ship arrives and the train bringing them to London will be sent on a meandering, unannounced route.

There was a report that visiting Soviet police asked Britain to issue "shoot to kill" orders in event of any threat to the Russian premier or Communist party chief while they are in Britain.

There was no official confirmation of this but a sudden wave of anti-Russian incidents made the report seem likely.

DOUBLE-CHECK MADE The Soviets reflected their anxiety by sending two of their own security officials today to double-check the area around the hotel where the Russian visitors will stay.

They spent 40 minutes pacing and measuring streets and alleys and scrutinizing rooftops and upper floors of nearby buildings. The British had done it all Monday.

Reports from Copenhagen said the cruiser Ordzhonikidze had left Danish waters and was sailing slowly towards Britain, apparently trying to kill time since it is not due to dock until 11 a.m. Wednesday.

Khrushchev celebrated his 62nd birthday aboard the cruiser today. London press reports said a birthday party was held on the ship and toasts of vodka drunk.

At one point, Mrs. Kelly shed some nostalgic tears.

Service's poem to Miss Kelly went:

Princess, what magic pen was dipped in radiant colors of romance

To write the wonder of your script, your fairy tale of chance.

Bringing us beauty, art and grace.

To welcome to this land of ours, and with our homage take your place.

Mid song and flowers, long may you play your golden part.

Not only to ensky your name but to throne in every heart.

With health, fire and fame.

The people, we proud of our past, from modern urgency of power.

Long have we hoped with faith steadfast to hail with ecstasy a star.

Sweet princess may our dream come true.

Our star be you.

Soviet Will Back UN In Mid-East

Joins Campaign To End Crisis

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union today called on Israel and the Arab states to settle their conflicts on a basis acceptable to both sides.

Russia offered to join other governments in an effort to reach a solution.

In one of the most important statements it has issued in recent times, the Soviet foreign ministry also called on both Israel and the Arab states to refrain from border incidents along the United Nations-approved frontier, and to improve the situation of 100,000 Arab refugees.

The statement said Russia would support any United Nations actions to "strengthen peace in Palestine."

CLEAR PATH

Diplomats regard the statement as clearing the path for discussions in London on the subject of the Middle East—the world's No. 1 international problem.

The new move was foreshadowed when Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and First Deputy Prime Minister Anastas Mikoyan showed up at an Israeli independence day party Monday night.

The preamble of today's statement blamed increasing tension in the Middle East on the formation of military blocs such as the Baghdad Pact, which it called an effort to restore colonialism.

PRAISES BRITAIN-FRANCE However, it went out of its way to praise Britain and France for their post-war moves to assist the development and independence in the Near East region saying "the Soviet Union appreciates the actions of Great Britain and France which have contributed to a solution of the problem on the basis of the independence and sovereignty of the above-mentioned countries."

The statement outlined a three-point program for peace in the Middle East.

1. That the Soviet Union will support any United Nations action to strengthen peace in Palestine.

2. The Soviet Union considers that measures should be taken for the end without any interference from without.

3. The Palestine question should be settled, taking into account the interests of all parties.

COMINFORM DISSOLVED

MOSCOW (AP)—First deputy premier Anastas Mikoyan announced today the Cominform has been dissolved.

He told reporters there would be a long statement in Wednesday's Russian newspapers concerning the ending of the Stalin-founded organization, which bound together European Communist parties.

The Cominform Communist information bureau was set up at a secret meeting in Poland of Communist delegates from nine European countries Oct. 5, 1947.

It was the successor body to the Comintern Communist international, which was supposed to have been dissolved in 1943.

Sneak Thief May Steal Ride On Premier's Rail Passes

A Vancouver thief today is the possessor of Premier Bennett's passes on the PGE, CNR, and CPR.

A folder containing the premier's railway passes was among loot taken by thieves who broke into more than a dozen cars parked outside of Vancouver's Stanley Park pavilion Monday night.

The premier denied a valise belonging to him was taken. He said the valise was the property of his executive assistant, Ron Worley, and probably contained "a clean shirt."

The premier lost a topcoat, hat and scarf, in addition to the passes.

"Perhaps I should stay in Victoria, and stop travelling around," he quipped.

U.S. Envoy's Talk Called 'Unwarranted Intrusion'

Hostile Reaction Surprises Visiting Ambassador Stuart

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

U.S. Ambassador R. Douglas Stuart expressed surprise today at the hostile reaction in Ottawa to a speech he made Monday to the Canadian Club in Vancouver—his last before he retires from office next month.

Progressive Conservative party leader George Drew branded the speech as "inaccurate" and "unfortunate." John Diefenbaker (PC-Prince Albert) termed it "an unwarranted intrusion by the ambassador of a friendly and neighborly country." M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, said it was "unusual" and "highly improper."

Mr. Stuart, in his address, denied charges of U.S. domination of Canadian industries and natural resources. He declared that from 1950 to 1954 Canada imported 56 per cent more iron ore from the U.S. than she exported to the U.S.

DREW HIT

He added that a "prominent Canadian" (Mr. Drew) had referred to the situation "emotionally rather than logically."

In an interview at Government House, where he is guest of Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross, genial 70-year-old Stuart smiled sadly and said:

"Under the democratic system no man should be immune from criticism, but I am grieved that my friends in Ottawa should have interpreted my speech as anything other than an attempt to promote friendly relations between our two great countries."

"No one is more enthusiastic about Canada than I am. I have loved every minute of my stay in Ottawa. I have no political feelings one way or the other—my aim is solely to help both countries."

"The chief point I wanted to make was that Canada need not worry about an economic invasion by the United States. All new countries have been developed by foreign capital. Look at America—she was developed by British capital."

FUTILE FIELD

"There is nothing sinister about this. It is simply an economic fact that capital always seeks a fertile field. And Canada today is one of the most fertile fields in the world."

Mr. Stuart said he was on friendly terms with most members of the Ottawa government, including Mr. Drew and Mr. Diefenbaker.

"I would hate to think they regard me as anything but a friend of Canada. Surely they must realize that any developing country needs foreign capital."

PROUD TO INVEST

"We in the United States are proud to be able to invest in your country. There has never been any suggestion that the U.S. is trying to dominate Canada."

In Ottawa Conservative leader Drew said:

"It is unfortunate indeed that Mr. Stuart, whom we had all regarded so highly as such an understanding friend of Canada, should have chosen to give as his farewell message so inaccurate an interpretation of Canadian sentiment toward investors from the United States."

Mr. Diefenbaker, who is foreign affairs critic for the Opposition, raised the Stuart speech in the external affairs committee.

INTRUSION

He said Mr. Stuart had shown himself as a proponent of the Trans-Canada pipeline bill now before the Commons. This, he said, was a "gratuitous intrusion" of the rights of Parliament.

Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Coldwell urged External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson to comment, but Mr. Pearson declined. He said he had received a copy of the speech from the U.S. embassy but had not yet read it.

In Vancouver, Vic Forster, secretary-treasurer of the Vancouver and Lower Mainland Labor Council (CLC) insisted that some U.S. branch firms in Canada can create "anti-American feeling."

He challenged Mr. Stuart's denial that the U.S. is trying to take over Canadian industry through large investments.

"One example of interference is the Grinnell company, a powerful American corporation which has a branch in Vancouver and which recently engaged a law firm to handle negotiations with a local union."

"This law firm secured an injunction which took away from the workers their right to picket, which they enjoy under the laws of British Columbia."

The injunction is still in force.

"Such actions can only create anti-American feeling."

The U.S. ambassador and his wife made a sightseeing tour of Victoria today with Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Ross. They returned to Vancouver Wednesday for a brief stay before catching the plane back to Ottawa.

They are due to arrive in the capital Friday evening.

B.C. Tory Hits Out At Highway Project

(From Times News Services)

Legislation aimed at producing a paved Trans-Canada Highway by the end of 1960 has been introduced after day-long Opposition argument that federal aid on the project doesn't go far enough.

Opposition criticism on a resolution preliminary to the government bill culminated Monday night in an amendment put forward by David Fulton (P.C.-Kamloops).

He proposed that provinces building the 4,580-mile highway be allowed to choose the section of the road on which a special 90-per-cent federal contribution will apply.

His amendment was defeated 74 to 38, all Opposition parties supporting it against the Liberal majority. The resolution then was adopted without formal opposition and the bill was introduced.

The 90-per-cent federal contri-

Discriminate Among Provinces

The bill also seeks Commons approval for an increase to $250,000,000 from $150,000,000 in the maximum federal commitment.

Mr. Fulton said the federal plan would discriminate among provinces. British Columbia had completed the most expensive sections in the mountains and the extra federal aid would apply to less costly parts of the B.C. route. Other provinces had built easy sections first and would get the 90-per-cent help in meeting their toughest sections.

Mr. Winters replied that each province will be able to take advantage of the 90-per-cent gap-closing formula with great advantage.

Ross Thatcher (Ind., Moose Jaw-Lake Centre) urged creation of a national highways commission to administer greatly expanded federal highways aid. Under the commission, the central government should pay $200,000,000 a year for the next 10 years on highway building.

Mr. Thatcher said his proposed national highways commission should undertake a four-point program to:

1. Provide funds on not less than a 50-50 basis for provincial construction of major east-west and north-south roads.
2. Help maintain the roads.
3. Devise a master plan or highway development.
4. Standardize construction and engineering specifications for highway building across the country.

Howard Green (P.C. Vancouver Quadra) said he doubts the highway bill will be completed even by 1960. The provinces deserved criticism for not making more progress, but the whole program had bogged down in in-

Politicians Fail 'Armed Truce World' - Simonds

Whole Nation Must Organize

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lt. Gen. Guy Simonds, former chief of staff of the Canadian Army, says he firmly believes Canada is unprepared either for war or for preventing war.

"There is no political leader in this country who will face up to the matter of organizing our national manpower—which goes far deeper than simply the conscription of all the youth of the country into the navy, army and air force," he said.

"We should not merely copy the conscription methods of the United States," he said in an interview, "for many features of the American system would not be adaptable. We must develop our own methods of military service."

"I do not think war is inevitable. But I am convinced a change of the Communist regimes to a more moderate way of thinking is only going to come about over a very long period of time."

"And to hold the ring in the meantime we are going to have to live in terms of armed truce—not for a few years but probably for a lifetime."

"If we were properly prepared for thermo-nuclear attacks, everyone would have a card telling him what the nation expects him to do in a crisis."

Gen. Simonds was here to address the Vancouver Institute of International Affairs Monday night.

In Victoria's Empress Hotel Wednesday he will address two Canadian Club luncheons on "Some Reflections on Canada's Defence Problem."

'IN GOD WE TRUST' NOW U.S.A. MOTTO

WASHINGTON (AP)—"In God we trust" is not the official motto of the United States, but the House of Representatives decided Monday it should be.

The house passed and sent to the senate a four-line joint resolution to establish as the "national motto" the phrase which has been appearing on coins since 1955.

Suspect Played Russian Roulette Murder Jury Told

VANCOUVER (CP)—One of two men accused of the murder of a Vancouver policeman played "Russian roulette" a few hours before the slaying, it was testified Monday.

The testimony came from Mrs. Noreen Carey, common-law wife of the other accused man.

James Carey, 27, and Joe Gordon, 34, are being tried before Mr. Justice A. M. Manson for the murder of Constable Gordon Sinclair Dec. 7.

Mrs. Carey in her third day on the witness stand said Gordon played Russian roulette with a .38 calibre pistol at her home on the night of the killing.

She said Gordon removed all the bullets from the gun but one and spun the cylinder before pointing the gun at his head. Gordon told her the weight of the single bullet carried it into a non-firing position.

The Crown alleges the fatal bullets were fired from a .38 calibre Webley gun.

Robert Smith, self-employed trucker, said Carey and Gordon jumped into his car in the area where the murder was committed shortly after Smith heard "what I thought were shots."

Smith told the court he saw a man "carrying a rifle" come out of a house near the spot where his car was parked. The man got into a small automobile and drove away.

REPORT DUE IN TWO MONTHS

New System Likely In Federal Paroles

OTTAWA (CP)—Establishment of a federal parole board may figure prominently among the recommendations of a special committee that has just completed almost 2½ years' study of Canada's parole methods.

The committee headed by Mr. Justice Gerald Fauteux of the Supreme Court of Canada is preparing its report to Justice Minister Garson who asked in October, 1953, for an "unrestricted" inquiry into parole, remission and related matters.

The report may be ready in about two months, it was learned Monday. It will be up to Mr. Garson to decide whether it should be made public. Normally such reports are for a minister's personal information.

A number of briefs to the four-man committee urged establishment of a parole board to replace the present system under which paroles are granted by the governor-general on the solicitor-general's recommendation. The minister acts after investigation of each case by the justice department's remission service.

The committee also is expected to deal with the question of a higher rate of probation. Many public figures, including Ontario Liberal Senator David Croll, have asked that the number of prisoners receiving tickets of leave from federal penitentiaries be boosted wherever possible.

The justice department's remission service has undergone extensive reorganization and has eased its policies somewhat in the last two or three years.

Last year, 1,345 tickets of leave were granted, up from 906 in 1954. There are roughly 5,500 men in federal penitentiaries.

Legion Helps

EDMONTON (CP)—The Alberta Command of the Canadian Legion announced Monday it will grant $100 each to Alberta Victoria Cross winners attending the Victoria Cross centennial celebration in London, June 26.

Conciliation Officer

Conciliation officer W. T. McLaughlin has been appointed by the labor department to act in a contract dispute between nine Victoria automobile firms and more than 300 members of Automotive Maintenance Workers' Federal Union local 151.

Employees are asking a 3½-cent-an-hour increase on present journeyman mechanics' rate of $1.78½ an hour, which would make the rate 10 cents an hour above Vancouver's $2.

Present minimum rate in other classifications is $1.06 an hour.

IRISH RETURN MASTERPIECE

LONDON (AP)—Irish Nationalists last night returned the $10,000 painting they stole from the Tate Gallery last Thursday. It was not damaged.

The painting was taken to the Irish embassy by an unidentified woman, then handed over to Sir John Rothenstein, director of the Tate Gallery.

CD Injury Payment Rule To Be Reviewed

Martin Gives Promise to Pearkes While Outlining Civil Defence Plans

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister Martin said Monday night Canada's civil defence workers get compensation for injuries suffered while on CD schemes, but not for injuries through combatting civil disaster such as floods.

Mr. Martin told the Commons estimates committee he does not believe the federal government should get involved in compensation for injuries suffered in civil disaster, which is primarily a provincial-municipal matter.

However, he promised Maj. Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC (PC, Esquimalt-Saanich), he would take "another look" at the situation.

The compensation for CD workers hurt in CD schemes was paid through arrangements between the federal government and the workmen's compensation boards of the various provinces. The costs were split between the federal government and the provinces.

In the event of war, he said, these agreements would be wiped out and all Canadians would be put on the same footing.

Civil defence plans include the guarding of reservoirs and food supplies against saboteurs, safe stockpiling of medical supplies and methods of dealing with fifth columnists in the event of war, the health minister said.

Under questioning by Dr. William Blair (PC, Lanark), opposition health spokesman, he outlined these CD preparations for any war emergency:

1. Attention is being given plans to remove vital papers and documents from Ottawa to a place of safety.

2. Medical supplies are being stockpiled in areas outside potential target sites but there can be no guarantee all such areas will be safe from the effects of thermonuclear attack.

3. Surveys are being made for reception areas outside the main target sites for the receiving of evacuated civilian population.

4. The RCMP are charged with the responsibility of watching for fifth columnists and saboteurs. There is a close liaison between civil defence and the RCMP in this phase of the preparations.

5. The possibility that disease might be spread through the planting of bacteria is not being overlooked though "less emphasis" is being given this aspect now. The minister did not elaborate.

SECOND ATTEMPT to swim Lake Ontario is being planned for this summer by Florence Chadwick, of San Diego, Calif. She completed 17 of the 32 miles on her first try in 1953, the same year Marilyn Bell, 17, of Toronto, the only person to swim the lake, got across in 20 hours, 56 minutes.

Democrats Set Farm-Bill Traps

Eisenhower Veto Triggers New Plans To Grab Election Spotlight From GOP

WASHINGTON (UP) — Democrats conceded privately today that they cannot muster enough strength in Congress to override President Eisenhower's veto of the farm bill.

They made a show of lining up votes for Wednesday's showdown in the House. But behind the scenes the problem they really were concentrating on was how to regain the offensive in the battle over farm legislation.

There were diverging views among Democrats as to whether their next move should be:

1. To give Mr. Eisenhower exactly what he had asked in the way of new farm legislation—a soil bank program and nothing else. Such a move, some Democrats argued, would be the best way to strengthen their party's election year charge that the GOP is not doing enough to help the farmers.

PUT IKE ON SPOT 2. To enact the soil bank, but include provisions raising price supports above the minimum 82½ per cent of parity level at which Mr. Eisenhower set them Monday, but keeping them under the 90 per cent level provided in the vetoed Democratic bill. Advocates of this plan said he vetoed the original Democratic farm bill because it was "a bad bill for the country... awkward... clumsy." He told the nation he was urging Congress to pass a straight soil bank bill "as promptly as possible" because "the farmers and his problems a political of America have a right to demand and expect that." In his broadcast, Mr. Eisenhower said he was told "what a risky thing in an election year" to veto the farm bill. But, he said, "I am no political expert... I will always resist any attempt to make the farmer's problems a political football."

Those favoring this move said it would make clear, even in the face of another veto, that Democrats were uncompromising on what they feel is essential to the farmers.

When Democrats Divide

ALMOST UNBELIEVABLY, IN so short a time, the prospects of American politics have been totally transformed.

Six months ago, facing a sick President with no adequate successor, the Democratic Party seemed certain of victory next November under a great leader, Mr. Adlai Stevenson.

Today the President is recovered and more popular than ever; Mr. Stevenson is no longer sure of nomination; his party is basically split on the old issue of civil rights; the Republicans, even with a farm revolt on their hands, have every chance of winning the presidential election, perhaps even the Congressional elections.

Only a rebirth of unity can revive the Democrats' former hopes. As Mr. James Reston, the distinguished Washington correspondent, writes in The New York Times: "A unified Democratic Party, using all its resources and following its best instincts, might beat Eisenhower with the help of the disgruntled farmers, but a party that would rather lose than unite has little chance."

At the moment the chance of unity appears dim. On the one hand, over a hundred Democratic members of the Congress have signed a manifesto pledging themselves to oppose the implementation of the Supreme Court's desegregation order. On the other, such party leaders as Governor Harriman and Senator Kefauver have approved this ruling.

If the Democratic convention supports the Court in its platform or nominates a candidate favorable to desegregation, the southern Democrats will probably bolt into another Dixiecrat party and open the Solid South to the Republicans.

If the South is appeased by a platform and candidate satisfactory to it, the Democrats will lose the powerful Negro vote and many white votes as well in the North.

It had been assumed earlier that Mr. Stevenson, a moderate, could unite these two factions but his showing in various primaries—despite his victory in Illinois—has been bitterly disappointing and, as Mr. Reston remarks, he is no longer discussing great abstract issues, but shaking hands and making himself "folksy."

His decline as a party force has elevated Mr. Harriman as an alternative. (Senator Kefauver, though he has done surprisingly well in the primaries, is not likely to be the candidate.)

The forces gathering around Mr. Harriman could not unite North and South. He already has antagonized the South beyond reconciliation by his demand that the Court's order be quickly enforced. A Harriman-Kefauver ticket, as now discussed, would be deliberately designed to appeal to the North, especially to the farm vote, and would risk disaffection and a third party in the South. Then the Republicans could lose some of their northern states and still win the election.

The Republicans have long been split, of course, like the Democrats. Both parties are loose coalitions of diverse interests. But the Republicans have the incalculable asset of a leader whose personality unifies these elements and has the support of millions who, without him, would not vote for his party.

The Democrats thus approach the election divided and uncertain. The Republicans face only one possible uncertainty, the President's health. But it seems to be improving all the time.

Higher Costs in Prospect

WHETHER THE NON-OPERATING railway unions receive the $159 million wage increase originally demanded, or a figure approaching the $60 millions deemed adequate by the Taylor conciliation board, the result nationally will be much the same. The railways, to meet the increased cost, will be forced to raise their rates; or, since it is predicted that this would result in falling revenues through reduced business, they will appeal to the Federal Government for a subsidy.

In either case the public will pay more. An increase in rates would be reflected in higher costs for goods, and few goods sold in Canada do not include railway transportation costs in their price. A federal subsidy would be paid out of tax revenues, and the cost likewise distributed fairly evenly throughout the population. In this case the cost is indirect, but nonetheless real, and will be borne by working people in company with all taxpayers.

These harsh facts of economic law have no relation to the circumstances of the unions' demands. Their case has been built on the claim that railway workers in many non-operating categories are underpaid in comparison with other industries. This claim apparently was recognized by the conciliation board and resulted in the decision to award pay increases totalling $60 millions.

But the decision of the board is not binding. It may be rejected by either the railways or the unions or both, and the dispute could eventually go to an arbitration board with power to enforce its decisions.

Another pertinent fact in the negotiations is that railway unions, while still retaining the right to strike, have been requested by the Government on previous occasions not to resort to a walkout in enforcing their demands. The effects of a nationwide railway strike would be too disastrous to the country's economy.

In return for such forbearance on the union's part it is logical that any adjudicating board should give full weight to union arguments. A sizeable increase in railway costs is therefore in prospect. The point to be remembered is that no matter in which form they are imposed, they cannot be escaped by the public.

The Amiable Visitors

FEW INTERNATIONAL STATE visits can ever have engendered the tensions that will accompany the imminent arrival of Messrs. Bulganin and Khrushchev in Britain.

Too many democratic Britons hate all that the Soviet leaders stand for, too many continental refugees in the United Kingdom bear scars of body or memory that were inflicted by communist brutality to themselves or their families, too many residents of the island fortress fear the aggressive power of the U.S.S.R. and all too recent inimical threats from both these Kremlin figures.

The visit itself apparently resulted from a casual remark by Prime Minister Eden at the Geneva Summit Conference. Having declined an invitation to visit Moscow, he almost automatically added that the Soviet leaders must visit Britain some time. The Russians' acceptance was immediate and binding, and we shall shortly see the spectacle of state visitors being elaborately shepherded, both by Scotland Yard and Soviet security agents, through a country in which the monarch can move easily and safely at any time without more than routine protective preparations.

The recent Malenkov visit gave a hint of what Mr. Bulganin and Mr. Khrushchev may attempt to achieve. The Kremlin forerunner went all out to ingratiate himself with the British, quoted Robbie Burns, distributed candy to children, was kissed by shop girls, and had himself an orgy of pudgy hands across the sea.

British newspapers and politicians are warning the people not to be taken in by any such display within the next ten days. The official itinerary allows few opportunities for the wide-open popularity campaigning enjoyed by Mr. Malenkov. Mob appeal will be kept to a minimum. "Red smiles," the public is being told, "are not necessarily what they appear to be."

Meanwhile a number of demonstrations against the visitors has already taken place, and a Marshal of the Royal Air Force, Sir John Slessor, has delivered a blast at Premier Bulganin as the man responsible for "the coldest-blooded, blackest-hearted bit of treachery" in the history of the Second World War.

He referred to the camping of the Red Army on the outskirts of Warsaw for several days while Nazi forces wiped out the Jewish insurgents barricaded in the city's ghetto. British planes were flying supplies to the ghetto defenders from Italy, but the Russian "allies" nearby did not lift a hand.

Such memories do not easily die. Many whose relatives perished in Warsaw may be among the London crowds watching the Russian visitors. Regardless of what good may come of the talks soon to take place, there will be sighs of relief from all concerned when the awkward "at home" has been terminated.

LOOSE ENDS

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Voice of the Turtle

JUST when the voice of the turtle and other springtime sounds should be heard in the land a low murmur of human wrath can be detected. It will rise before summer. The public, or some sections of it, are angry because money is not so easily borrowed as it used to be.

Soon we shall doubtless hear that the Money Power, the bankers' old conspiracy and a national Government (evidently anxious to antagonize the voters) are combining to keep us poor.

Already we have from The Toronto Globe and Mail, the Conservative Party's most distinguished organ, the old announcement that the central Bank of Canada has no business tightening up credit, raising interest rates and generally impoverishing the nation.

IN the most remarkable utterance of the season the Globe and Mail announces that "to expect the Bank of Canada to temper the rate of legitimate capital expansion by creating an artificial money stringency is an anachronism of the most objectionable type." In other words, it is no business of the Bank's if inflation threatens to engulf us again. What, then, is the Bank's business and what its purpose?

Nobody thought much about these things so long as we enjoyed a gigantic boom and no substantial rise in prices.

Now, when the boom threatens to raise prices because there is more money around than goods, everybody will start thinking furiously again and we shall hear many solemn absurdities like those of the Globe and Mail.

The croaking frog chorus of Social Credit, from the dank swamp of monetary mysticism, may be expected on the midnight air any time now.

It should not be too difficult for any child of, say, ten years of age to understand what is happening in Canada this spring. Much of the public misunderstanding is because a very simple process is always presented by the experts in a barbarous jargon of their own unit for Christian ears.

It should not be difficult, I mean, for anyone to understand that this country can only make so many goods, lay so many roads and build so many factories and houses solely because it has only so many hands to do the work and so much material to use; and that if we create more money than goods the excessive demand against a limited supply will raise prices.

But it would be difficult to understand a central government and bank that did not try to prevent this damage by limiting the expansion of money under such conditions.

IN point of fact, we are using far more goods than we produce at the moment. What we can't produce we are borrowing from our American neighbors and going heavily into debt.

That is the simple meaning of our borrowings in the United States. We are expanding our own economy faster than the economy of any nation by importing American capital in huge quantities.

The Conservative Party is most alarmed by the penetration of American capital and naturally blames the Liberal Government. But we certainly cannot expand at our present rate without this borrowing. And no politician known to me is ready to come out and pronounce the awful heresy that maybe we are expanding too fast and ought to go slower.

THAT might be a debatable proposition but it would be clear and honest. Also, the politicians think, it would be politically suicidal.

So we have the Conservative Party's chief organ damning the Government and the Central Bank for applying brakes, ever so gently, against inflation.

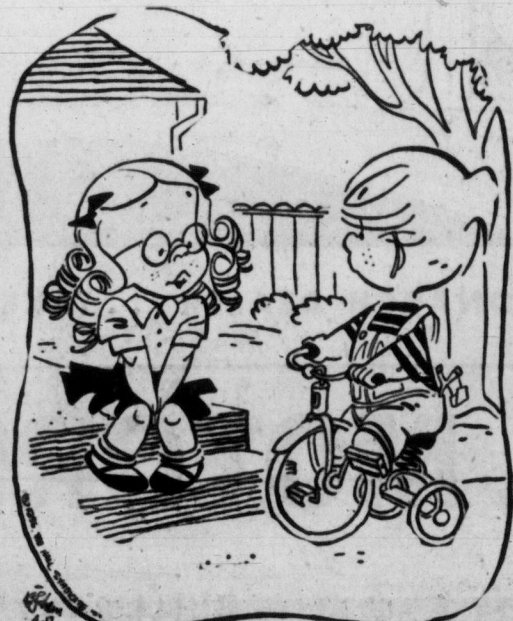

We have Mr. Drew telling us that the Americans are buying up the country and his lieutenants adding quickly that we want American capital, but not American domination.

We have a Government putting the best possible face on things but wondering fearfully what would happen if the Americans stopped pushing their capital into Canada and thus suddenly slowed down the boom.

AT the same time we have legislators and newspapers demanding higher old age pensions and government spending of every sort (together, of course, with lower taxes) when quite obviously we could easily afford such things if we really wanted them. We want them all right, but not at the expense of reducing our road and building programs or our own personal consumption of goods. We don't want to do anything for the pensioners if it is going to hurt us.

And if we go on for long using more than we produce and financing by inflation we shall end by raising prices and damaging all pensioners and debasing all fixed investments while expressing our profound sympathy for the poor.

Why the Sudden Interest?

IT is of interest to note that the municipality of Saanich is pressing upon the Provincial Government, the need of an east to west road through the district, and stressing the importance of such a highway for Civil Defence purposes.

Since when has the council of Saanich developed such an interest in "Civil Defence" or military necessity?

It can be only since Monday of last week, when the Kersey application to build was approved, thus commencing ribbon development on the Trans-Canada Highway, despite the objections of Mr. Brahm Weisman, Capital Regional Planning Board, and Major-General G. R. Pearkes, V.C., M.P.

Atlantis

Concerning the legend about the lost continent of Atlantis that has been the cause of much speculation and guessing, both as to where it was and its actual existence, a few years ago reports appeared in newspapers about a German Clergyman, Rev. J. Spanuth, who claimed he had found traces of it in the North Sea near the West coast of Heligoland.

No further reports have been heard about his find. I very much doubt finding any trace either in the North Sea or in the Atlantic Ocean. I prefer thinking they may find traces of it in the Sahara Desert of North West Africa as some geologists have claimed that ages ago the Sahara desert area was a tropical district, and evidence seems to support that contention.

If then an Atlantis with its claimed fertility and culture ever really existed the evidence seems to point to the Sahara section of Africa rather than to the North Sea or the Atlantic Ocean.

FROM LONDON

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Drifting Before Ill Winds

IT is very hard to sum up the impressions of a fortnight of intensive inquiry in London without sounding like a gloomy lunatic in complacent, prosperous America. Two points stand out like sore thumbs. On the one hand, the Atlantic Alliance that guards the freedom of the West is already rather deeply undermined. The walls and bastions still stand. The fortress looks impregnable. But any fairly sharp ear can already catch the sound of the Communist engineers driving their tunnels underground, to bring down the walls in ruin.

On the other hand, this undermining of the Atlantic Alliance is going forward so successfully only because the policymakers in Washington seem to be incapable of any firm decision about the right way to stop it. It cannot be stopped, unfortunately, by a combination of hoping for the best and vaguely appealing to the United Nations.

Anyone who says these things must sound a bit cracked at home because, as one rather desperate and weary British leader remarked to this reporter, "In Washington, they not only don't tell the truth to one; nowadays they don't even seem to tell the truth to one another."

Yet the threat to the Atlantic Alliance is not mysterious or hidden. On the contrary, it can be very simply described.

Utterly Dependent

In brief, this country, the second partner in the Atlantic Alliance, is utterly dependent on Middle Eastern oil. Once deprived of the oil from the Middle East, Britain will be irretrievably bankrupt. Being bankrupt, Britain will perforce lay down the heavy burden of Western defence in NATO and elsewhere. And in these circumstances, Britain may perhaps take the kind of political turning that now seems unthinkable.

The poisons endlessly engendered by the Arab-Israeli conflict were already quite dangerous enough, before the Soviet intervention in the Middle East. The Soviet offer to arm Egypt and other Soviet action in the Middle East have given a powerful new impetus to a wholly new self-confidence to Arab nationalism, which is now typified and quite largely led by the able Egyptian Premier, Lt.-Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser.

The surge of Arab nationalism is in turn immediately directed, as the Kremlin intended, against what remains of the old British imperial position in the Middle East.

London's first reaction has been to try to prop up the old familiar order by any means available and at all costs. That is the real explanation of the present state of affairs in Cyprus, which is an essential base for any future military operations in the Middle East.

The policy towards which London is tending means, in effect, fighting Arab nationalism all-out and without quarter,

To my thinking, the above sounds like constructive news—i.e., against the specific background of what one of the eastern columnists terms "our wheat mountain?"

Nevertheless, I find it interesting to ponder the way in which the above decision has almost meshed with (a)—a further 'cut' in U.S. wheat harvest estimates—for the second season in a row, to approximately 200 million bushels below the ten-year average, 1945-54, of 1.2 billion bushels; and (b)—the editorial comment in my farm journal (Farm & Ranch Review, March) saying: "Extremely cold weather in Europe has done extensive damage."

"Over half a billion dollars is the estimated loss to grain crops in France alone. That continent produced 1,770,000,000 bushels of wheat last year. Production is almost sure to be heavily reduced this year."

This reader knows little about wheat, and still less about those European wheat-fields; but, according to the front page stories in recent weeks, I feel on reasonably solid ground in 'guesstimating' a 15 per cent shrinkage from last year's harvest? If so, it looks as though the weatherman may have snagged the odd 250,000,000 bushels from what one political economist describes as "Frozen Europe?"

Pensions and Treatment

It has long been understood that a veteran formerly in receipt of the War Veterans' Allowance and who on reaching the age of 70 years was transferred to the pension payable under the Old Age Security Act, would retain his entitlement to treatment under the treatment regulations.

However, due to recent amendments to the Veterans' Allowance Act it would now appear that in certain cases there is some doubt about this and changes are taking place which may affect some of them.

The Canadian Legion is anxious to prevent any cases of hardship in this regard and strongly suggests to all recipients that they check their position with the local D.V.A. office and if necessary reapply for War Veterans' Allowance.

Secretary, Pro Patria Branch, Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L.

Not National

May I point out that your correspondent, "Reader," is mistaken (inadvertently I presume) in his reference to "the Italian Church (RC)"—sic. RC's do not believe in national churches; for them The Church is One, and Catholic or Universal, as its name indicates. The "R" is merely a reminder that its head, St. Peter, and his successors, established their headquarters in Rome, the then material—and later spiritual—head of the world.

The bulk of the Italian nation may belong to it but so do the Irish, the Spanish, the Belgian, French, Austrian, all of Christendom except certain people forced into national or sectarian churches not so long ago, and splinter sects. I believe the Irish, and perhaps the Poles, could not be forced; but they lost everything except their souls.

ANOTHER READER.

Empty Optimism

Washington is plainly trying to dodge this alarming responsibility, taking refuge in empty optimism and bland generalities. Altogether the present situation strongly recalls the first stage of the Iranian oil crisis, which was a forerunner of this one. This time, however, the risks are immeasurably greater than they were when Mosaddegh became a name familiar in the West.

This time all the Middle East is involved, rather than just one corner of it. This time, moreover, the drift in Washington is extremely likely to cause the British to drift, in their turn, into the policy that already tempts them. But when and if the British finally commit themselves to all-out opposition to Arab nationalism, America's own policy makers are due for a sad awakening.

For the British have nowhere near the resources now needed to carry through such a policy successfully. Britain is just as important to the United States, in a strategic sense, as Middle Eastern oil is to Britain in an economic sense. And if the British go in over their depth, Americans will have the unpleasant choice between going in themselves to bail Britain out, or letting Britain founder, so permitting the Atlantic Alliance to founder, too.

Let's Veto Agriculture Too

PRESIDENT Eisenhower has vetoed the United States' Farm Bill and a voice from the small of my back yells, "Hurray! Why don't we veto the whole idea of agriculture?" The small of my back is somewhat prejudiced. It would decree capital punishment for all manufacturers of short-handled digging forks.

The small of my back thinks the only sensible way to grow vegetables is in nicely sealed cans, or in cellophane bags, in the deep-freeze unit of our favorite grocery.

That part of my anatomy—and it can be amazingly articulate at this time of the year—has never thought much of gardening. It will bend to dig worms willingly in the fishing season, so long as the worm crop is plentiful. But it takes a dim view of digging dirt for the sake of digging dirt. Each succeeding April it registers a more raucous protest.

I came to terms with the small of my back a long time ago on the question of weeding dandelions in the lawn. It raised its objections to kinking, so I could stoop down with a hand-weeder and worry away at the roots.

"FORE!" So together we conceived the idea of removing the plants and blossoms from the grass with an aged and rusty mashie. Golf isn't one of my vices, but on the lawn I do yield to the seduction of a full powered swing.

With ample coaching from the small of my back—coaching inspired for motives ulterior to those of developing golfing style—I'd address, if that's the word, the dandelion plant.

"Make it an explosion shot," said the voice from the small of my back. "Don't be chicken. Hit it, hit it, man." And I'd explode. Blossom, leaf and the top part of the root would wing its way over the border, with a fair amount of real estate attached.

Mind you, the technique doesn't do everything it might for the appearance of a lawn. The would-be velvet finish looks as if the moths or gophers have been at it. But there's no evidence left, unless you dig down, to suggest the existence there of a dandelion. And if people are inclined to raise an eyebrow, you can always point to the exposed earth and say, with the proper air of nonchalance: "Nice soil, don't you think?"

The beauty of the procedure is this: After a couple of afternoons with a mashie, your wife is sure to come out, make clucking sounds or worse, buy a squirt-gun, appropriate spray and take over the job of killing dandelions herself.

Unfortunately the mashie isn't the tool for the vegetable plot. It will shift a lot of dirt; that's true. But it seems that in vegetable gardening you have to keep some of the topsoil as a planting base.

NO DIRT, NO GARDENING. You might think that if you removed the topsoil there'd be no gardening left for you to do. But you'd be wrong there. In almost every household there's someone with ideas about compost, about loads of soil, about collecting leaves in winter and allowing the forces of nature to make more earth.

So even if you're banished to a bank of clay, you'll find yourself gardening somehow. And the tool seems to be a short-handled fork—short enough, that is, to make you bend at a right angle.

The small of my back appreciates the point. It worked for a while at the weekend and then went on strike.

There's something a little pitiful about a man who shouldn't be too far past his full vigor wandering around like a bent pin, or at least like a sack of potatoes kinked in the middle. The stance draws virtually no sympathy. You totter forward, head and body bent in permanent obeisance. And your neighbors holler at you: "What's the matter, are you looking for something? Did you lose a nickel?"

What causes this? Why the self-punishment? Not, in my case, for any produce that I'll raise. In several years at this unhappy springtime occupation I've never planted anything that gave me more than my bait back. All in all, I think Mr. Eisenhower, distinguished as has been his career, has never done anything half so promising as vetoing the Farm Bill. Me, I'm all for giving urban farming at least back to the slugs, the earwigs and the cutworms. They'll get it any how.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

No Canadians Hired

LONDON—It has always struck me as a trifle strange that when you step into the London office of a Canadian firm you don't really find yourself in "a little bit of Canada."

There may be a little bit of Canadian atmosphere there, such as a couple of Canadian landscapes (pink snow) on the walls, but by and large the general setup and the voices you hear across the desks are just like any other English place of business.

Take offices such as Trans-Canada Airlines, the Royal Bank of Canada, CPR—even Canada House—one would have thought that the girl who, for example, helped you with the purchase of an airline ticket to Canada would have a Canadian voice, would maybe be from your own home town.

But no. The offshoots here of Canadian organizations have only a sprinkling of Canadians on their staffs. You're likely to go into the London branch of one of our banks and find not a soul from home there—the one Canadian on the staff is out to lunch!

Many people find it disconcerting when they go in seeking information about Canada, as with a Canadian shipping company or Canada House, to find that the person they talk to is very hazy about the country and confesses that he or she has never been there.

I checked with various companies here to find out the reason for this and learned that it is the fixed policy to draw the bulk of their staffs from British nationals. Key positions are invariably held by Canadians but the lower positions—seldom.

One reason is rates of pay. A Canadian stenographer, for instance, would have to take a big slice in pay transferred to the London branch, where British pay scales rule for the underlings. Then there is the matter of transporting the employee to this country, hardly an economic proposition for a firm as regards a low-salaried employee. Added to this is the fact that the firm would have to see to it that all the Canadian employees they brought over were properly housed and there would be a constant change-over of staff as back-to-Canada leave was granted to each of them.

And finally, a big argument for employing British nationals is that they know this country and its people's ways—something it takes even an astute Canadian several years to master.

Occasionally one is agreeably surprised to find that the person one is dealing with in a Canadian outfit here is a Canadian. Canadians living in this country can apply on the same basis as a British national. Also, if a good job, such as a senior secretary, becomes vacant most of the firms will give girls in the home office in Canada a chance of applying—if they're prepared to resign and automatically be taken on again on the same standing as a Britisher.

The basic problem seems to be the big salary gap between Canada and Britain (Australia and New Zealand branches are full of their own nationals.)

HOME GARDEN

Perennial Cuttings May Be Taken Now

To the home gardener August is the time to take cuttings of most plants. At that time of year the new growths have become firm and are in a good condition to make roots.

There are not many who make a regular practice of taking cuttings of perennials during the year. A perennial, however, now showing above ground will root readily and produce flowering plants this year.

By removing a few young growths from phlox, Michaelmas daisies, goldenrod, helianthus, lychnis, and many others, rooting them in a box of sand kept in a greenhouse, coldframe, or sun porch, we can have plants which will bloom a little later and not be quite so tall as the undisturbed parent plants.

Quite an effect can be produced, when these rooted cuttings are placed around the parent plants from which they were taken.

Second Pearl Harbor Would Open 3rd World War Says Bradley

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. Omar Bradley said Monday that if the United States should become involved in a third world war, "it would start with an attack on the United States . . . very much like the last war started at Pearl Harbor."

Bradley, now retired, said "I hate to" identify the likely aggressor but "we must admit publicly" that Russia is the only power that might start a war.

He appeared before a Senate armed services subcommittee which began Monday an investigation of where the United States stands in air power.

Bradley and W. Bedell Smith,

Smith said, "depends on the total strength of our position."

Bradley said he favors total power on the grounds that "nobody goes around picking a fight" with heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano.

Bradley said U.S. military planning must be based on the possibility of an attempted atomic knockout blow. He qualified that later, however, saying it is also possible that some smaller war might get out of control and grow into a world war.

"Our capacity to avoid war,"

High Social Service Level Held Burden to Industry

B.C. government ministers were told Monday night the high level of social services in British Columbia compared with other provinces is placing a heavy financial burden on industry.

"There is a danger that these extra costs may price us out of competitive markets at home and abroad," said H. L. Ramsay on his re-election as chairman of the Victoria and Vancouver Island branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

"We incline to the belief that, from time to time, legislation is enacted without full realization of its impact on industry," Mr. Ramsay told the 38th annual meeting of the branch.

MINISTERS PRESENT
His address was heard by Attorney-General Robert Bonner, representing the premier; Trade and Industry Minister Ralph Chetwynd, Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, Public Works Minister W. N. Chant, Agriculture Minister Kenneth Kiernan, and their deputies, who were guests at the meeting. He urged that representatives of industry should be brought into consultation during the early stages of legislative proposals affecting industry.

"This would facilitate a proper exchange of accurate information, minimize protests, petitions and interviews subsequent to the passing of legislation," he said. Industrial expansion on Vancouver Island during the past year represented an investment of $10,490,000.

PACE INCREASING
"The pace is being accelerated and projects currently under way reach the staggering total of $138,493,000," he said. "Some of this work will of necessity be completed only in 1957, but there is already a further sum of $48,000,000 earmarked for the immediate future.

"While this expansion, related to basic industries, is mainly Up-Island, it is a healthy growth which will be of material benefit to Victoria and Vancouver Island in general."

Attorney-General Bonner, who brought greetings from Premier Bennett, made no reference to Mr. Ramsay's criticisms of government legislation.

He dealt with the industrial expansion of the province and predicted that by 1975 B.C. would have a population of 3,000,000.

He added that British Columbians enjoy a standard of living "only a few cigarette packages less" than the standard of living in Ontario.

Many to Matriculate Without Examinations

Standards of achievement have been so high in Greater Victoria high schools a majority of the 480 grade 12 students will be excused final exams.

Reporting to school board Monday night, municipal inspector John Gough said "by virtue of satisfactory scholastic achievement and attitude it is anticipated the majority will be promoted on recommendation." Those who are not recommended, or who seek scholarships, will write departmental exams from June 18 to June 27.

Trustees endorsed the new distribution of the Union of Health costs, tapping Victoria City for 62.4 per cent, Esquimalt for 8.6 per cent and the school board for 29 per cent, but not before Trustee Richard Reeve, a school representative on the health board, suggested

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

Stepping Out...With His Two Loves!

It's the hour of twilight!

And what happier prospect could a man ask for a wonderful evening. For tonight he's stepping out with his two favorite companions—the lady in his life... and the car in his life!

Cadillac's marvellous performance. Driving will be so easy and so effortless that every mile will be a mile of relaxation and pleasure. Even the city's traffic will offer its share of rest and recreation.

There will be the contentment that comes with Cadillac's great safety... and the comforting knowledge that he—and his lady—are surrounded with every comfort and safeguard known to automotive science.

And, finally, there will be the joy of arriving in the "car of cars"... and of catching those glances of admiration that will come his way as he pulls to

NEW GAME REGULATION

Ban Lifted On Fish-Roe

By DENNY BOYD

For the first time in 17 years, Vancouver Island anglers now are permitted to use fish-roe and fish-roe compounds in fresh-water sports fishing.

HODGES SENT TO PUEBLO

Victoria's Berlyn Hodges will find his baseball competition a little classier this year. Hodges, who won 16 games and lost five while pitching for Eugene of the Northwest League last season, was optioned Monday to Pueblo of the Class "A" Western League by Portland Beavers of the Coast League.

Calgary Gets Two Games in Edinburgh Cup

CALGARY (CP)—Two games of the Edinburgh Cup series will be played in Calgary. Stampede Corral manager Lloyd Turner announced Monday night.

In a conversation with Western Hockey League president Al Leader, Turner learned that one game between the eastern and western professional champions is definitely scheduled for the Corral Saturday, April 28.

Date of the other game will be known as soon as the respective champions are decided.

Winnipeg Warriors and Vancouver Canucks are battling it out for the western crown while Montreal Royals and Shawinigan Falls are engaged in the eastern final.

Chicago (AP)—Former heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott and ex-fighter manager Jack Begun of Chicago appeared before the Cook county grand jury Monday but are reported to have failed to give proof of alleged irregularities in Illinois boxing.

Both men met with state's attorney John Gutknecht before briefly facing the grand jury after being subpoenaed last week.

"It is evident that the statements made recently in connection with the boxing game by Walcott and Begun are not statements," said Gutknecht. "No factual information was brought to the state's attorney's attention. Unless other witnesses volunteer that they have knowledge of actual corruption in the Cook county or Illinois boxing game, there is no action that can be taken at this time."

Ponoka Evens Series

RED DEER, Alta. (CP)—Ponoka Stampede Monday night evened the best-of-seven Western Canada Intermediate A hockey final with a 7-5 win over Port Arthur Bearcats.

Bearcats won the first game 10-7 and the third will be played Wednesday night in Ponoka.

The ban on fish-roe as a lure was lifted by order-in-council March 15 and became public Monday when the 1956 B.C. sport-fishing regulations were released at the Victoria Game Office.

In previous regulations, Section 17 of the sport-fishing regulations in non-tidal waters stated: "When angling in any water in the Vancouver Island District, no one shall use or possess fish-roe of any kind or any compound of fish-roe and oil, or other substance."

Under the new regulations, this prohibition has been rescinded.

Inspector George Stevenson of the Victoria Game Office said the lifting of the ban came as a result of appeals from Vancouver Island fish and game clubs.

MAJORITY OPINION
"The majority of their opinions favored lifting of the roe ban so we complied," said Inspector Stevenson.

"However," he added, "the same bag limits are still in effect, no matter what lure is used, so I don't think the use of fish-roe should make too much difference to the number of fish caught."

Inspector Stevenson added, "I think that the use of salmon eggs as a lure has been overrated through the years, if only because it was banned. Salmon eggs can be extremely potent at certain times of the year but over the course of a full fishing season I don't think roe or a compound would be any more effective than a good commercial lure."

In addition to lifting the fish-roe ban, the new regulations now permit angling in streams that flow into Cowichan Lake. Formerly, all streams flowing into the lake were closed to sports fishing.

A's Get Groth Via Waivers

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Kansas City Athletics picked up outfielder Johnny Groth via the waiver route from Washington Nationals today in an attempt to strengthen their outer defenses.

At the same time, the A's sent catcher Billy Shantz and outfielder Al Pillaric to their Columbus farm club in the International League.

The 29-year-old Groth, who bats and throws right-handed, hit .254 in 95 games and drove in 28 runs last year.

Aussies Name Hoad Number One Netter

MELBOURNE (AP)—Australian selectors Monday named Len Hoad Australia's No. 1 tennis player.

Release of the national rankings put Hoad ahead of his Davis Cup teammate, Ken Rosewall, who topped the ranks last year.

Ashley Cooper and Neale Fraser, both Davis Cup team members, were placed third and fourth, respectively. Cooper climbed four places since last year.

ANGLERS MEETING
Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association will hold a meeting at the British Public Schools Club Thursday night at 8.

VIRGIL SETS THE PACE

Cheerful Virgil Pague of the Rainier Golf Club, Seattle, set the pace Monday at Victoria Golf Club to take medal honors in the qualifying round of the 26th annual Empress Golf Tournament. Virgil's score of 88-23-65 led the field of handicap swingers looking for a berth in the championship round.

Want To Be Medalist? Just Get Out of Town

By BILL RAYNER

If any of you golfers ever decide to shoot a net 65 in the medal round of the Empress Golf Tournament, take Virgil Pague's advice and leave town.

To be more specific, take a couple of weeks off and head for Acapulco, Mexico.

Virgil, with the timely help of a 23 handicap, breezed in with a 65 himself Monday at Victoria Golf Club to lead the men's qualifying round of the 26th annual Empress tournament, and he lays his success at the sunburned fairways and greens of the Mexican resort.

Just a weekend golfer at Seattle's Rainier Golf Club, with the scores to prove it, Pague up to Monday had accomplished nothing remotely spectacular in the five years he has been coming to the Empress tournament.

That was before he discovered Acapulco. His body, a roasted nut-brown from the Mexican sun, Pague explained it all Monday afternoon while changing clothes after his round.

"It was that steady golf down in Acapulco," said he. "Hitting that course every day down there gives a fellow a chance to get his game in shape. I had one of those good days today, of course, was hitting the ball well, but I had a chance to work up my game before I came up here."

Virgil's game was good on Monday, for a man with a 23 handicap. He was out in a 41, and back in 47 for a gross 88, 19 over par. He didn't pick up a birdie, but suffered no more than a double-bogie around the drafty course.

But before you rush off to pack your bags, take heed of Pague's two friends, D. R. Fisher and E. S. Martin. They also spent some time in Acapulco before heading for Victoria, but Fisher ended up with a net 76 Monday, while Martin came around in 85.

"That means a few dollars each they owe me," says Pague. "They had the same chances I did."

"But," he added as an afterthought, "maybe those few rounds I played in Honolulu in January helped, too."

Los Angeles (UP)—The Pacific Coast League race began to take some semblance of form today as Los Angeles moved up into second spot behind front-running Seattle and San Francisco.

The Angels outslugged Vancouver 13-7 Monday in the only game of the day to muscle into second spot behind the hitting of centre fielder Jim Bolger, who drove in four runs. His biggest blow was a two-run homer off Tom Herrera in the sixth.

Jim Pisoni was the big man with the bat in three runs with a bases-loaded double in the fifth inning which highlighted a five-run uprising.

Manager Lefty O'Doul of Vancouver tossed four pitchers into the fray while Bob Scheffing of Los Angeles used three. The win went to Don Swanson and the loss to Ernie Funk. Swanson was the third Cherub hurler to take over while Funk started and was routed in the first frame.

Vancouver is at San Diego and Hollywood at Sacramento in a pair of night games tonight while Seattle is at San Francisco and Portland comes here for daylight contests.

Handicap Handy In Empress Golf

Mrs. McCaffrey, Virgil Pague Medalists

High-handicap golfers took full advantage of their strokes Monday to win medalist honors in the qualifying rounds of the 26th annual Empress Golf Tournament.

At Victoria Golf Club, Virgil Pague of Seattle checked in late in the afternoon with a net 65 to take the men's honors. Shooting from a 23 handicap, he went around the breezy Oak Bay layout in 88 gross.

In the ladies' qualifying round at Uplands Golf Club, Mrs. W. P. McCaffrey of Seattle and Uplands' Mrs. Art Roberts tied with net 77s, but Mrs. McCaffrey took medalist honors with a better score on the back nine. She shot a gross 107, with a 30 handicap, while Mrs. Roberts came in with 94-17-77.

It was the second straight year that Seattle golfers took medal honors in the tourney.

MATCH PLAY STARTS

Today, the first 32 qualifiers in each of the two divisions tee off in championship match play, followed by flights. The men will play at Victoria, while the women will play at Uplands, moving to Victoria for the semi-final and final rounds, Friday and Saturday.

Of the 32 men qualifying, three with net scores of 75 were picked from a hat containing 10 eligible swingers. Only 10 ladies failed to make the championship round from the disappointingly low entry of 42.

Runner-up to Pague was stocky Art Davis of Calgary, a regular visitor to the tournament. Also sporting a useful handicap, Davis came in early with 80-13-67, while tied for third place came another Calgary, J. S. Poyen, with 74-68.

Leading the six Victoria golfers reaching the championship round was E. Gudewill, with a net 69. Others qualifying were Bill McColl, Keith Olson, C. J. Robertson, G. Cartwright and R. B. Wilson.

LOW GROSS LEADERS

McCull, only golfer in the tourney shooting from scratch, tied for low gross honors with D. W. Coons of Vancouver, Wash., who finished with a net 68. Both shot gross 73s.

Not faring so well were defending champs in both divisions. Lee Steil of Seattle was far back with a net 80 and did not qualify, while women's champ and medalist, Mrs. O. W. Smith of Seattle, came in with net 88 but still made the championship round.

Another past men's champion, George Goodwin of Colwood, posted a net 77 and failed to qualify, while several low-handicap swingers were also out of the running.

Victoria's distaff side will be well represented today at Uplands. Led by Mrs. Roberts, a total of 10 city ladies qualified for the championship round.

Match play will continue all this week, with the finals to be played Saturday.

NHL ALL-STARS NAMED

Habs Put Four On Dream Team

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Canadiens, runaway leaders of the National Hockey League all season and winners of the Stanley Cup, have placed four men on the NHL's all-star team.

The only unanimous choice was big Jean Beliveau, the league scoring champion and star centre for Canadiens. Doug Harvey missed a unanimous choice on defence by three points.

Goalie Jacques Plante, Montreal, the Vezina Trophy winner, won the all-star goalie berth, and Maurice Rocket Richard nailed down the right-wing position. Captain Ted Lindsay of Detroit won the left-wing spot.

The only surprise on the team was the selection of Bill Gadsby of New York over Red Kelly of Detroit for an all-star defence berth. Gadsby edged the Red Wings' star by two points.

Angels Bop Mounties, Take Second Place

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (UP)—The Pacific Coast League race began to take some semblance of form today as Los Angeles moved up into second spot behind front-running Seattle and San Francisco.

The Angels outslugged Vancouver 13-7 Monday in the only game of the day to muscle into second spot behind the hitting of centre fielder Jim Bolger, who drove in four runs. His biggest blow was a two-run homer off Tom Herrera in the sixth.

ATROCEM COERCE CONFIDENTIUM AND KILL DE UMP

Nine Commandments for Ball Fans

By OSCAR FRALEY
NEW YORK (UP)—For baseball fans bubbling with "Amo, Amas, Amat" the Red Cross warns today on the opening of the season "Atroce Coerce Confidentium."

If you find that slightly incomprehensible (me, too) the translation from what is said to be Latin is:

While you may love baseball "Restrain excessive confidence."

The Red Cross (Brooklyn's baseball-conscious chapter, naturally) warns the Dodger fans not to let that last World Series victory go to their heads. Same might get busted.

whether you root for the New York Giants (perish forbid); such "Dodgers" as Pueblo, Newport News, Thomasville, Union City and Hornell or even the Keokuk Kernels or the Hot Springs Bathers.

The Red Cross warns that often "the exigencies of fandom have caused illness, accidents and even shootings, on occasion." So if you want to increase your chances of being around for the next World Series, here are the suggestions for spectators:

1. Keep down your exultation enroute to the park so you don't lose sight of the ground and curbing. (Otherwise you may not wake up 'til after the game—if then).

2. Don't try to yell too loud and you'll avoid dislocated jaws and strained vocal cords. Yell more often, not louder. (It rattles the ump more that way, too).

3. Don't let the home team's errors put you in a carelessly belligerent mood. (Don't challenge cars, buses, etc., on the way home.)

4. Don't exaggerate physical rooting. Avoid extra jumping up and down, extra flailing and too much oomph in slapping your neighbor's back. You'll keep down the numbers of sprains, fractures and contusions. (To his back, arms, etc.—and to your nose.)

5. Avoid sitting on the edge of your chair in excitement. You'll be a sad sack fan with a fractured coccyx. (You might even hurt your back.)

6. Don't go too far in lording it over the losers. An extra taunt can lead to fist-cuffs and only Rocky Marciano has won 'em all. (If you have to do it, pick on the nearest midget.)

7. Avoid Roman-type feasting, overeating while cheering can cause ulcers, digestive disturbances and even choking. (Anyhow, the "hots" are usually cold and the pop is usually warm.)

8. You don't have to get all dressed up like Mrs. Stor's pet pony. To avoid strangulation, discomfort and tripping, wear loose comfortable clothing. Ladies should wear low heels. (And for goodness sakes, no feathers in the hats.)

9. Still and all, don't bottle up your enthusiasm and let it gnaw away inside. Take that trip to the ball park and do your well-tempered rooting in the fresh air. (Don't throw that bottle at the TV screen. First, you lose the drink. Second, you just don't have a chance of hitting an umpire that way.)

Of course, when it comes to umpires, all these rules are to be completely disregarded, anyhow. Otherwise you might as well stay home and watch Howdy Dood.

THE B-B-BEER WILL B-BE C-COLD IN M-MILWAUKEE

MILWAUKEE (AP)—B-b-brother, it was c-c-cold in Milwaukee Monday and an announcement f-f-from the B-B-Braves didn't s-s-serve to warm things up for the season opener w-w-with the Chicago Cubs today. Especially for the C-C-Cubs.

The B-B-Braves plan to install infra-red radiant h-h-heating units in their dugout and bullpen f-f-for the g-g-game.

What about the C-C-Cubs' dugout? "We want to see how the units work out before we install them in the visiting club's dugout," a club spokesman said.

The city had snow f-f-flurries Monday.

THE SCOREBOARD BY Harry Grayson

(NEA)—The shocker of Al Kaline of the Tigers is that he is one toe away from being crippled.

Osteomyelitis, from which he has suffered since a child, has left him with the three outside toes of his left foot deformed. He is still treated regularly for the bone disease.

The condition causes Kaline to run in peculiar fashion—on the ball of the left foot and the toes of the right. But this priceless young outfielder can fly.

Nor has this affected his hitting—as last year's .340 average, which led the American League, and 27 home runs and 102 runs-batted-in indicate. Kaline's picture right-hand swing gets its power from the right foot. His left, or fore foot, acts as a guide.

Kaline—pronounced Kay-line as is clothesline—is 21 now. Perhaps it is his newness to baseball that has kept his foot condition a secret. Or, it could be that Al's style of popping your eyes with his play—and then dressing and heading for home, with "hello" and "goodbye" constituting a conversation, —has kept information on him to a minimum.

For example, a lavish quote from Kaline is: "I could always hit. That's all."

Al Still Hasn't Much to Say

Somebody said that Kaline had opened up a bit this spring after a winter job as good will man for a Baltimore department store. But he still has that cigar store Indian quality to him. A reporter trailing this blond, crew-cut player around Henley Field, on the north side of Lakeland, has to pump, pump, pump.

"I was more relaxed last year," he said, finally. "Things had to be a bit strange when I came up direct from high school in June of 1953. I was only 18. I was playing with and against men I had only read about. It was nice in '54, when I felt that maybe I did belong here. It's great now that I feel I'm needed."

"Because I could always hit. I admired Ted Williams, and Hutch (then Detroit manager Fred Hutchinson) took me to the visitors' clubhouse during the Red Sox' last visit to Briggs Stadium during the '53 season."

"Williams nearly knocked me down hitting me in the left side of my chest and getting mad at an imaginary pitcher. 'Don't let them throw the ball by you inside there, against the wrists,' he yelled. 'Get those hands and wrists strong so you can get the bat around and whack that pitch.' He told me he twisted a baseball in his hands all winter to strengthen them. And he swung an outsized, 55-ounce bat 20 minutes or so daily to develop his wrists for last-second action."

Ted Wishes He Was 18 Again

"Ted asked me how old I was. When I told him I was 18, he threw up his arms and shouted, 'Eighteen! And you can hit! Why, kid, you've got the world by the tail on a downhill pull.' That didn't exactly hurt my confidence. Hutch sent me the big bat and I swung it during the off-seasons of '53 and '54."

Kaline came to Florida a month early this year, golfed and practiced bunting in the backyard of a place he took at Delray Beach. His pretty wife, Louise, did the pitching.

Kaline's hands are not large and on the thin side for a growing young man standing six-two and weighing 185 pounds. He is 10 pounds heavier than he was a year ago, weighs 20 more than he did when he picked up a $33,000 bonus for signing.

"A quick bat," says Bucky Harris.

"A good eye," says shortstop Harvey Kuenn. "I doubt that he went after 25 bad pitches all last season."

Kaline is slightly terrific now. And his tremendous potential has hardly been scratched.

HIGH SCHOOL FINAL

Vic High Wins On Otto's Goal

Otto Cheuden played the hero's role Monday afternoon as Victoria High School's senior soccer team downed Oak Bay High, 1-0, in the opening game of the best-of-three city finals.

Cheuden's goal came midway through the first half. The tricky inside left centred a pass which bounced off an Oak Bay fullback. Cheuden, following his pass in, powered the ball between the posts for the only goal of the game.

WINNERS OUTPLAYED
Although the Vics outscored Oak Bay, they actually were out-hustled and outplayed by their speedy adversaries.

On two occasions in the first half of play, Victoria goalie Tom English ran too far out from his nets after loose balls. On both occasions Oak Bay shots sailed over the cross-bar with the nets wide open.

English later settled down to play a stalwart game between the posts as he added another shutout to his record.

On two other occasions in the second half Victoria High found that luck and a pair of fast feet pay off.

Both times Oak Bay's deceptive little centre forward, Bill Mossie, broke down the field for what looked like a sure goal.

Both times a Vic High back, following up from almost centre field, managed to steal the ball off Mossie's toe just as he was shooting.

The second game is scheduled for Wednesday afternoon at Central Park.

TIME OUT!
"It's Republican strategy! Throwing out the first ball like that will get him the vote of every fan in the park, and those watching on TV!"

Montreal Wants Spot In Majors

MONTREAL (BUP)—Mayor Jean Drapeau has indicated the city of Montreal would go after a major league baseball team once this city of 1,500,000 builds a civic stadium.

Montreal Herald columnist Elmer Ferguson quoted Drapeau during Saturday's mammoth civic reception for the Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens hockey club as saying: "I hope the next time we meet here officially will be to welcome a major league baseball team to Montreal."

Drapeau declined to go into details about obtaining a major league franchise, but he did say that plans for suitable stadium (at least 40,000 seats) would be ready in six or eight months and construction would be completed in less than a year.

"I haven't any idea what team we will approach, or what team might approach us," Drapeau said, "but several major league clubs are not doing well financially, and Montreal is a natural spot for them. I think it should do as well for any team as Milwaukee or Kansas City has done for the Philadelphia Athletics."

Answers Start Today To Baseball's Posers

NEW YORK (AP)—Will Brooklyn dash from the barrier for 10 straight, as it did last year? Did New York Yankees pick up pennant insurance when they snagged southpaw Maury McDermott from Washington? Are Boston Red Sox improved sufficiently to wrest the American League title from New York?

Which team got the better of the deal that sent Larry Doby to Chicago and Chico Carrasquel to Cleveland last winter? Can rookie Luis Aparicio fill Carrasquel's shoes at shortstop for White Sox? Is Hank Sauer the answer to St. Louis' quest for right-handed punch? Can Jackie Robinson's legs hold up under a full season? Will Milwaukee's Gene Conley and Curt Simmons recover from their sore arms?

These were some of the questions confronting the 16 managers today as the 1956 major league season opened in eight big-league cities. It marked the first time in many years that all clubs inaugurated their campaigns simultaneously.

BESET WITH PROBLEMS

Although tabbed as heavy favorites to meet again in the World Series, Yankees and Dodgers are beset with problems. Yankees are vulnerable at shortstop and in the relief department. Their biggest headache may come from their strongest department—the outfield. Although Mickey Mantle has given promise this spring of fulfilling his tremendous potential, there is a constant concern over his damaged under-pinnings.

Hank Bauer, still not fully recovered from the groin injury that cut short his world series action, is playing despite a specialist's order to rest for the entire season. Should either outfielder be unavailable for any length of time, Yankees most certainly will be in trouble.

Brooklyn is plagued by pitching miseries. The departure of Johnny Podres, the lame arm of Billy Loes and Karl Spooner and the uncertainty of Carl Erskine to pitch the full season with a balky elbow should prevent a romp such as last year.

Every contender has key men who must come through for their clubs to win. Ted Williams must be able to play at least 125 games for Boston, Doby must drive in 100 runs and rookie Aparicio must come through at shortstop for Chicago. Vic Wertz must be fully recovered from his polio siege and Carrasquel must be the answer at short for Cleveland.

Milwaukee's key man is Conley. Daryl Spencer must fill the second base vacancy for

Firestone Announces Automatic Safety Tire

To meet the demands of motorists for tires that assure supreme safety under super-highway driving conditions, this all-nylon, tubeless tire with blow-out safe life protector has been developed by the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. of Canada Ltd. W. H. Funston, President of the Firestone Company displays a cross section of the automatic safety tire that shows how blow-out dangers are eliminated by an inner tire or diaphragm with a safety valve. The inner emergency tire retains air long after the outer casing has lost its air as a result of being ripped open or slashed. "This new Super 500 tire," according to Mr. Funston, "was developed in the 500-mile auto races at the Indianapolis Speedway and is designed to provide motorists with complete safety and peace of mind."

Right or Wrong?

SHEFFIELD, England (Reuters)—Rev. Sydney Spoke, 50-year-old Methodist minister, saw a book entitled "Right and Wrong" in the market place here—and pocketed it, a court was told Monday. "It was a sudden impulse," he was alleged to have told a policeman, adding he intended to pay for the book before he left the market. The minister was found guilty, but given a conditional discharge.

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books? Time out Andy?

Andy, who is a nice, not a person, will answer two questions daily submitted by child readers of Canada and the U.S. Children who submit the questions to select to answer will receive as prize, for the main question, either a 16-volume set of "The Children's Hour" or a 30-volume set of "The American People's Encyclopedia." Prizes for the secondary question will be an "American People's Encyclopedia Year Book" or a year's subscription to "Treasure Trails" plus "Andy's Everyday Encyclopedia."

Address your questions to "Ask Andy" Victoria Daily Times, Victoria.

Andy sends a complete, 16-volume set of "The Children's Hour" to Martha Jean Price, aged 10, of Peoria, Ill., for her question:

What is a Coyote?

The coyote is a native of South America. He is a member of the rodent clan. He is a water-loving rodent and well built for a life of paddling and swimming. You will find him in large numbers along the great waterways of South America. You may see Mama Coyote swimming along with her babies on her back. A big fellow may measure two feet long, plus another foot of sturdy, round tail. The back feet are webbed for powerful swimming strokes. Sometimes he chooses to live near the sea, burrowing in the beaches.

The Spanish named this water rodent with their name for otter. They called him the nutria. We often hear of a nutria fur coat. It is a warm, thick, long-wearing fur and looks a great deal like beaver. Maybe that is why the coyote is also called the mouse beaver.

The coyote's fur coat got him an introduction to the rest of the world. Actually, it is two coats in one. The undercoat is dense, soft and warm and waterproof. The little fellow can swim without soaking his skin. Coarse, long guard hairs grow among the soft underfur. They form an outer coat, giving him a shaggy look. In color, the fur is brown to blackish on the animal's back. Underneath he is yellowish or pale brown.

Quantities of coyote pelts are imported from South America. They are sheared or plucked to give a neat, smooth finish. Then they are sold as nutria fur. Naturally, some traders wondered why they should bother to import nutria from South America. Perhaps the little fellow would thrive in other countries.

So pairs of coyotes were taken to live in England and other European countries. They were also brought to North America. Here they were ranches in homes like their native waterways. They thrive happily in parts of Louisiana and New Jersey. Their homes are mostly wasteland. Being vegetarians, the furry rodents do no harm to people.

In England, however, the new immigrants became hungry. They left their ranches and escaped to nearby farmlands. There they devoured the crops and startled the people. Some people said they were some horrible, new kind of sewer rat. For a time there was great alarm.

So, if you happen to meet up with this furry, toothy rodent don't think he is a visitor from Mars. He may well be a coyote. If so, just remember he is a stranger and far from his native home. If he is edgy, it may be because he is hungry and desperate for a tummy full of water weeds. Also, he may be frantic for a nice swim. But remember, if he is an escaped coyote, he is miserably seeking for better living conditions. What's more, he is wearing a coat of lovely nutria, though you may not notice this under his shaggy outer coat.

Andy sends a copy of The American People's Encyclopedia Yearbook to Beverly Gooberman, age 10, of Bronx, N.Y., for her question: When did hypnotism start?

Some people seem to be able to hold your attention even when you want to think of something else. Hypnotism is like this, only much more so. Judging from Andy's mail, everyone has suddenly become interested in hypnotism. So here is a word of warning. Hypnotism is a job for experts and not for amateurs.

Wo do not know who was the first hypnotist or how he discovered the trick. But during the last half of the 18th century it was made popular by Dr. Mesmer of Vienna. Before the days of anesthetics hypnotism was sometimes used during operations. Later, psychiatrists used it to help those with emotional upsets.

But hypnotism is no parlor game. And no one can pull the trick on you if you stubbornly refuse to go along. Nor can you be forced to do anything really serious under hypnotism. And, we are told, it is almost impossible for anyone to hypnotize his close friends.

Students Busy, Teachers Tackle Parade Floats

Planned construction of floats for Victoria Day parade by technical school students has been canceled due to proximity of exams and school sports days.

The teachers will take on the job instead.

John H. Dalgleish, technical high school director, said following a meeting with Greater Victoria Celebrations Association members that the teachers plan to do the job as a public service.

GVCA officials had received board sanction to a plan which would see sponsoring merchants donate materials and construction be undertaken by students.

The new plan calls for six or eight volunteer teachers from each of Victoria's 38 schools. It is thought likely the materials will be gathered together at a central point the Saturday prior to the parade and the work be finished off in one day.

The Victoria Day parade will be held May 21.

Hume Still Hopes for Sunday Sport

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Fred Hume said Monday night he refused to believe that Vancouver would miss out on Sunday commercial sport this year.

In Victoria earlier Monday, Premier Bennett told a press conference he is considering a province-wide plebiscite to decide the issue.

However, Mr. Hume said he still hopes for Sunday baseball in Vancouver "before very long."

KEFAUVER IN THIRD LONE STAND

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—New Jersey voted today in a primary election which found Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee in a familiar position—battling a state Democratic organization for the third time in little more than a month.

In New Hampshire and Minnesota he defeated state organizations which backed Adlai Stevenson for the Democratic presidential nomination. But today's election was not regarded as a direct test between the Tennessee senator and the 1952 Democratic presidential candidate.

Kefauver's 72 convention delegate-candidates opposed a slate headed by Governor Robert B. Meyner, who said he was personally neutral, and that his delegation would go to the presidential nominating convention uncommitted.

Walter Harris First Political TV Star

OTTAWA (BUP)—Handsome 52-year-old Walter Harris emerged as a new "star" in Canadian television Monday night with the introduction of political telecasting.

Harris, federal minister of finance and one of several cabinet ministers regarded as in line to succeed Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent as Liberal party leader, kicked off the new TV series, "The Nation's Business."

Following the pattern of an interview, Harris explained his new budget in layman's language, emphasizing the Liberal party philosophy behind it.

DREW AGAINST
The political telecasts, which will rotate among the four parties in the House of Commons, will be aired in English and French on alternate Monday nights. Conservative Leader George Drew will make the first telecast for his party April 30.

Harris said his prediction of a $1,500,000,000 growth in the gross national product, the total value of all goods and services produced in Canada during the year, indicated "prosperity" for the nation.

He said that the surplus of over $100,000,000 he budgeted for would go toward reduction of the national debt, and emphasized that in 10 years, the Liberal party would have reduced Canada's total debt by $2,000,000,000.

He will speak on "Two Nations Great and Free." His topic will emphasize that Kiwanis International has set aside April 22 to 28 as United States-Canada Goodwill Week.

'Snorkel Tube' Fails Youth; Drowns in Spokane 'Pot Hole'

SPOKANE (AP)—A boy, whose "snorkel tube" filled with water, drowned in a pond north of here while two older brothers watched helplessly.

Richard Ronnie Durham, 13, Four Mound Prairie, Wash., drowned while wading across a "pot hole," said Sheriff Capt. William Reilly.

The boy's brothers, Edward, 16, and Larry, 15, told officers the tube Richard was using for breathing under water became submerged at an unexpectedly deep spot in the centre of the pond.

When the tube disappeared under water, the brothers tried to reach Richard, but failed. The younger boy could not swim, they said.

Sheriff's officers were notified and they applied artificial respiration, but were unable to revive the boy, after he had been pulled from the water.

The accident happened near Seven Mile, just west of the Spokane River.

Two FOR THE Show

By PHIL LEE

AA—Good Class BB—Worthwhile C—To Put in Time

(B) "MIRACLE IN THE RAIN" (Royal)—This can be rated one box of Kleenex or four man-size handkerchiefs. It's the wettest thing since "East Lynne" or maybe since the Gish sisters did "Orphans in the Storm."

It happened this way. Jane Wyman is a beautiful, bewitching girl whose life is a monotonous round-trip ticket between office and home. Mama (Josephine Hutchinson) has been pining away for hubby William Gargan who forsook her for something gayer 20 years before. Then one day the "miracle in the rain" happens. Jane, homeward bound, is picked up by soldier-on-leave-in-New York Van Johnson.

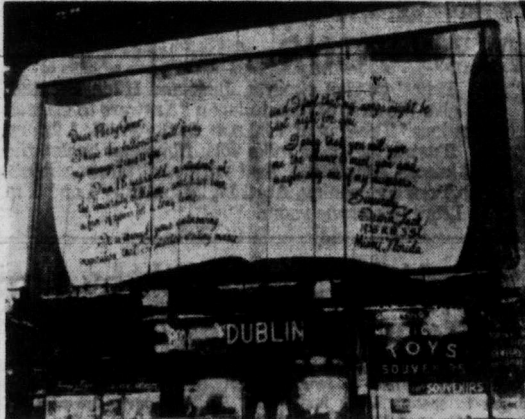

RIGHT OFF THE BAT, veteran theatre-goers will sense that Johnson is due for an honorable discharge before long. Johnson's too merry and bright to last. He laughs, jokes, drinks beer, makes love and refuses to behave as any self-respecting soldier should in a rainy, blue, hopeless old world.

Patrons should enjoy him while he lasts, which isn't long. Halfway through "Miracle in the Rain" Johnson is killed on the battlefield and from that moment on it's good weather only for ducks and arks.

Not that anyone can blame Jane for feeling sad. Because what with her unhappy mama, her errant pappy and loss of her only lover, an old snapshot taken in Central Park, Van's mother's ring on her engagement finger can't seem much of a swap. Only office pal Eileen Heckart prevents her from pulling a Brodie.

FORTUNATELY THE girl finds comfort in St. Patrick's Cathedral and eventually papa comes home to mama. Van peeks in from Heaven, and things look up a mile.

But it's still raining furiously—inside and out. It is unfortunate that Warners had to feature such excellent actors in such a weary melodrama. The character delineations by Miss Wyman and Van Johnson are commendable even if their plight seemed man-made rather than life-made. Special huzzahs to Miss Heckart, Miss Wyman's plain-Jane girl friend.

Disregard Top-Blower Expert Tells Managers

When a worker "blows his top" he does not necessarily dislike his job or his manager, Dr. Samuel Rosenstein of Marquette University, Milwaukee, told 150 Vancouver Island businessmen last Saturday.

"Managers should beware of taking these explosions personally," said Dr. Rosenstein, conducting a one-day course in "supervision, human relations and man management" at the Fox Theatre.

"Very often they are the consequence of problems and repressions that have nothing to do with a man's job—and the competent manager should not regard them as an affront to himself or the firm."

Dr. Rosenstein emphasized that the main qualification for a manager is not so much knowing the job to be done as knowing how to manage.

He added that one of the leading causes of discontent among workers is the feeling of not being appreciated.

"Tact and understanding are more needed in the management field than any other," he said.

"Just to make the whole thing official, the cocktail has been registered by the British Bartenders' Guild," an Alcan official said.

Province-Wide Conservation Body Planned

Formation of a B.C. federation of naturalists to fight for the conservation of natural resources was proposed at a joint meeting here of the Victoria and Vancouver Natural History Society on the weekend.

J. O. Clay, an official of the local society, said the meeting took no action to form a federation, but steps will be taken in the near future to initiate a provincial-wide organization.

Some 30 Vancouver naturalists headed by A. Wootton, William Hughes and Stewart Bradley were present at the meeting.

Naturalists feel there is a definite need for a federation of naturalists to protect wildlife and the alienation of park areas by provincial and civic governments.

The Vancouver visitors met with Victoria society members at the Provincial Museum on Saturday afternoon, and 33 members of the combined group took part in a field day Sunday, under direction of Miss Enid Lemon and Mr. Clay.

The day was spent in the Sidney area where 67 varieties of birds were noted, including the European skylark.

Man Who Sent Bank by Mail Brick by Brick Dies in Utah

HAYDEN, Utah (AP) — The man who mailed a two-story bank to eastern Utah has died here. He was 72-year-old William Horace Coltharp, pioneer Utah Basin businessman and president of the Bank of Vernal. When Coltharp built his bank in nearby Vernal, Utah, in 1919, he discovered he could save $1.45 on each hundred pounds of bricks by shipping them from Salt Lake City via parcel post rather than by railroad freight. The thousands of bricks needed to build the structure all went parcel post. And, because

Weakness for Woman Led to Visa Racket

MONTREAL (CP) — A former Canadian immigration officer has blamed a weakness for an Italian woman for plunging him into a visa racket that cost him his job and landed him in court.

George G. Wilson, 39, arrested in Toronto several months ago, is one of five men charged in connection with the illegal entry of Italian immigrants to Canada between 1950 and 1952.

He testified here at the preliminary hearing of two of the accused — Montreal lawyer Mario Lattoni, 53, and Victor Corbo, 30, mayor of nearby St. Eustache. Wilson, Gustavo d'Errico, 51, Montreal travel agency operator, and Adio

Cecchi, former employee of the Italian consulate in Montreal, had their hearings postponed to a later date.

SUCCESSFUL TO CHARMS

Wilson, taking the witness box under protection of the court, said his downfall began in Rome in the spring of 1951 when a girl named Carmela LoCaseo offered him love in exchange for a visa.

"In return for her favors I issued a visa for her brother," Wilson said.

He said he succumbed to Carmela's charm a second time. On neither occasion did he, as agent of Canada's citizenship and immigration department, question nor interview the applicants.

Another time, Wilson said, a man came to him and demanded he issue another visa.

"He said he knew about the previous two cases and that if I didn't issue the visa he'd talk," Wilson said.

ADmits OTHER OFFENCES
Wilson said he later was transferred from Rome to Naples and that he eventually issued between 70 and 75 irregular visas.

Scores Want $800-a-Month D.E.W. Jobs; Few Qualify

Requests for $800 per month jobs on the Distant Early Warning radar line have been pouring into the Victoria National Employment Service office in a steady stream, according to C. A. Mudge, manager. "But not all of the applicants yet have had the required qualifications," he said. A few have written, some have called in person, and "50 or 60" have telephoned for information, Mr. Mudge said. "I believe the contractor in charge of the job will be looking for technical ability and training," Mr. Mudge said. "If an applicant has a good background in electronics, or practical experience as a radar operator, we can take his name. If he has no experience in these fields, then his application cannot even be considered at the present time."

Applications for the substantial salaries began pouring into NES offices across Canada following an Ottawa announcement that civilians would be paid $800 monthly on the D.E.W. line.

NES officials are awaiting a list of job requirements from the United States agency that will be operating the far north radar line, he said.

Careless Driving Brings $40 Fine

Fine of $40 or five days in jail and a licence suspension was imposed on Robert E. Cummings, HMCS Naden, when he pleaded guilty Monday in Esquimalt police court to a careless driving charge. The charge arose after he lost control of his car on Esquimalt Road near Macaulay, skidded 400 feet and struck curbs on both sides of the road before turning over, police said. Fined $35 or five days in jail was Leslie J. Folland. Court heard that he backed from a driveway on to Craigflower Road and the rear of his vehicle was in collision with a car driving west on Craigflower. Damages were $210.

Ends fear of blowouts!
Ends fear of punctures!
Ends fear of skids!
Gives longer, safer mileage!

Now from Firestone comes the automatic safety tire... the new Firestone Super 500 with Life Protector. It gives you and your family supreme protection against highway hazards for its three great new safety features make it the tire with built-in peace of mind.

Blowout Safety! Should a blowout occur, an automatic safety valve instantly closes in the life protector and retains 3/4 of the air. This lets you ride out a blowout—even on a high-speed super highway, without swerving and without danger. This is built-in peace of mind.

Tubeless Safety! With the Super 500, roadside delays caused by punctures are reduced by 98%. That's because the patented Saffi-Liner clings to penetrating objects preventing loss of air, and in the worst cases changes a puncture to a slow leak. This is built-in peace of mind.

Nylon Safety! The 500 is an all-nylon tire—91% stronger than ordinary tires to give greater resistance to impact breaks on rough roads. Developed at the Indianapolis Speedway, the 500 is safer at sustained high speeds on modern super-highways. This is built-in peace of mind.

MAKE THE SAFETY SWITCH TO-DAY

Firestone Dealers will buy all the unused mileage in your present tires. Most Firestone Dealers have convenient budget terms.

Murder Hearing To Conclude On Thursday

Doctor Describes Multiple Wounds

Preliminary hearing of a murder charge against Czeslaw (Chester) Pupkowski likely will be completed in city police court Thursday.

The hearing opened this morning and was adjourned shortly after noon.

Pupkowski is charged with the murder of his wife, Cecelia, 38, on the afternoon of March 24.

The body of Cecelia Pupkowski was found in a kitchen at 128 Clarence.

Testimony of seven witnesses was heard today and 24 exhibits were entered by prosecution.

Five more witnesses are scheduled to testify for prosecution Thursday.

MANY WOUNDS

Dr. Ross McNeely, pathologist at Royal Jubilee Hospital, who performed an autopsy on the woman's body March 26, testified he concluded she died from loss of blood due to a multitude of wounds.

Dr. McNeely said there was a "jagged tear" eight inches long at the top of her head, a two and a half inch gaping wound above her left eye, a large gaping wound on her left forehead, and there was a five-inch long "fairly clean cut" across her throat, among other wounds.

"The throat, I felt, must have been cut by a knife. It was a fairly clean wound," the doctor told court.

George Edward Warwick, 122 Clarence, said he heard screams coming from 128 Clarence shortly before 3 p.m.

He estimated the screams, from a woman, lasted about a minute to a minute and one-half.

He said he saw Pupkowski walk past the driveway at 122 Clarence.

"The right side of his face was covered with blood," Warwick said.

Warwick followed the man to the waterfront in a truck.

Phillip Moir, 82 Obed, was with Warwick and also heard the screams. He could not identify a man he saw walking past the driveway.

Constable James Baxter told he found the woman in a kitchen.

"There was a tremendous amount of blood near her head and chest," the constable said.

He said he felt for a pulse. It was his opinion that she was dead at that time.

Walk-Out Threatened In City Budget Talk

A share of government gasoline and car licence taxes should be returned to municipalities to take the responsibility for street repairs off the shoulders of landowners, according to city alderman Geoffrey I. Edgelow.

He pushed a motion through a heated public works meeting today asking council to seek the added provincial aid through demands on the government, possibly through the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

At present he says many of the landowners paying for roads are retired pensioners who don't even own cars.

"Most of our taxpayers are pensioners," he stated, "Have you had any phone calls lately?" he asked the committee.

Sparked by Ald. Edgelow's enthusiasm the committee passed $66,143 from the $587,057 proposed budget of city engineer J. C. Garnett.

At one point in the meeting Ald. Edgelow stood up and threatened to leave, complaining the committee was pushing through the estimates without sufficient discussion.

"I can't see any sense in staying here. I have no intention of wasting my time . . . we're going to have an awful shock when we get to the end of the budget. I know as well as you I'm going to face an increase."

Brushing aside objections by other members of the committee that the 1955 budget was only 68 per cent of the one proposed in 1951, he still felt that costs this year could not be allowed to rise.

Mr. Garnett's 1956 budget however is based, he says, on need to look ahead rather than based on last year's expenditure.

The public works scheme is for inauguration of a perpetual maintenance system which would avoid the need for periodic streets-by-law loans.

Mr. Garnett wants a similar plan for renewing the city's sewers. Cost of the proposed road program would be $275,861 per annum for 20 years to bring the city's 152 miles of streets to a common level of excellence.

At the end of that period, proper maintenance would cost $203,000 annually.

Result is the 1956 estimates, before cutting began, were $134,948 higher than the amount asked last year.

CAN OVERPLAN

The alderman said the engineer was a "miracle man" if he could plan so far ahead. "I think you can overplan. I've ridden over roads in England that the Romans built." Mr. Garnett said that was because they had received adequate maintenance.

Ald. Edgelow said that in view of ever-increasing traffic locally, the landowner was being imposed upon for road up-keep. He said if the government was to share gas and li-

875 Mounties In Province Get Wage Boost

RCMP pay increases announced today will effect approximately 875 uniformed officers and men in B.C. Victoria headquarters said today.

The increases, first in 28 months, are retroactive to April 1, and apply to 4,500 in Canada. Not included are the salaries of $17,500 a year of commissioner L. H. Nicholson and deputy and assistant commissioners.

Pay of a third-class constable will rise by $4 a week to $50 or to $2,640 a year; that of a second-class constable with one year's service by $240 a year to $3,000; and that of a three-year service, first-class constable by $192 to $3,240.

New corporals will get $300 a year more, boosting pay to $4,320; sergeants another $312 to $4,740; inspectors, $492 to $5,690; superintendents—and there are only 23 of these—up $528 to $7,920 a year or $152 a week.

ASK The TIMES

Q—I am under the impression the temperatures this spring have been lower than usual. Is that correct?—M.W.

A—As reported by William Mackie of Gonzales Observatory, Meteorological Observatory, the mean temperature for February was 36.5, which was 4.3 degrees lower than normal. The sunshine totaled 64.5 hours, the lowest in 42 years of recording. The connection between the lower sunshine total and the lower mean temperature is plain. In March the mean temperature was 41.6, which was 2.6 degrees below normal.

Q—Where is the Saugeen River?—D.L.H.

A—It is a stream which rises in the highlands of southern Ontario and, after flowing in a northwesterly direction for more than 100 miles, empties into Lake Huron at Southampton.

WELL PLAYED—YA BUM!

Baseball Invasion Stumps Cricketers

By PETE LOUDON

Oak Bay council was caught on a sticky wicket Monday by a clash between cricket and baseball.

The problem of sharing Windsor Park playing area between Victoria District Cricket Association and baseball's Colt League was turned over to parks committee and municipal engineer A. S. G. Musgrave.

The difficulties were brought to light in a letter from the cricketers signed by Capt. J. A. Hobday. Capt. Hobday also appeared before council.

He said the new baseball diamond in Windsor Park was merged with the outer portion of the cricket ground.

"It's a shocking thing for anyone from England to come and see us playing under these conditions," he said.

ON MOUND

"Deep cover is standing on the mound . . . second base and the extra cover wouldn't get along very well," he added in pointing out that cricket has been a Sunday tradition in the park and now the Colt League has weekend schedules.

In the 11 years the cricket players have used the grounds only softball has also been played in the park. He said he knew nothing of the inroads of baseball until a player phoned him, "Bun, have you seen our cricket ground?" He went to the ground and saw a roto-tiller preparing a diamond.

POTATO CRICKET

He said there had been suggestion since then that the cricket ground be moved to Carnarvon Park, but, "Gentlemen, you can't play cricket on a potato field."

He related how the cricketers had weeded and seeded the present ground and cared for the pitch. They built a shed for their equipment and let the municipal parkmen use it also.

"We have a great following come down and bring their own chairs and bring their tea."

Capt. Hobday said he wasn't opposed to baseball and stated there was no greater ball fan than him. He would often go to Athletic Park for a ball game after an afternoon of cricket.

"After saying 'Well played, old boy' in the afternoon I'd shout 'Stick it in his ear' in the evening just like the next fellow."

He said since learning of the baseball schedule he had arranged that the cricketers would play no Sunday games and wanted no special concessions immediately. But he said he begged and prayed council " . . . to please preserve cricket."

There were numerous grounds in years gone by, now there were only Windsor Park and Beacon Hill besides the private field at University School. Yet in Vancouver there were seven cricket fields until recently and now there are nine.

"An error by the 1955 council" is the way Coun. P. F. Birley expressed the situation. Coun. C. H. G. Mann felt the baseballers " . . . shouldn't be allowed to play there on Sunday. I think the cricketers have had a raw deal."

Sun-Time, Fun-Time Clothes
Are Blooming All Over Town

By PENNY SAVER

Everywhere I looked today I got glimpses of spring and summer. Store windows are blooming with tempting new clothes in the brightest colors, each trying to outdo the other. The effect is wonderful! Even on a drab day, we know spring's around by merely looking at the new clothing arrivals. Accessories that spell fun are a vital part of the picture, too. The trend is to larger, eye-attracting bags this season, and the carry-all tote bags I saw are right in top fashion. There are two styles. One is of crinkly plastic in rose, chartreuse, rust-red or aqua. The other is of plastic-covered fabric in gay designs. There are varied colored polka dots on white and scenic and modernistic patterns that reflect dozens of colors.

These purses have a centre zippered section, with two open sections on either side. Twin clutch handles go over the top.

Will you be numbered among those women
who will regret buying
this year?

In this era of mass production, some manufacturers take short cuts utilizing surface tinsel and flash—and pay insufficient attention to long-lasting quality

If you intend to buy a refrigerator this year, protect your investment by asking your dealer
these 7 questions:

1. Do I need an ice-scraper or a pan of hot water to defrost the freezer compartment of the refrigerator?
If the answer is yes, you are not getting a fully automatic defrosting refrigerator.

2. When my arms are loaded with food, will I be able to open the refrigerator door by touching the handle with my elbow?
If the answer is no, you are getting a less efficient pull-handle type door latch.

3. Is the refrigerator deep enough to hold a turkey without removing shelves?

If the answer is no, the depth of the shelf area is less than 16", which is inadequate for sizable food storage.

4. Does a round shelf hold more food than a square shelf in the same size refrigerator?

If the answer is yes—don't believe it.
Place a round shelf on top of the square shelf and you will see that you have been deprived of food storage space—as much as 20%.

5. Can you put quart bottles or ½ gallon bottles in the door?

If the answer is no, the refrigerator has a shallow door, which means that you must put these big bottles inside the refrigerator itself—again robbing food storage space.

6. Does the refrigerator defrost by hi-speed electricity or does it push hot gas through tubing coils?

If it is the latter, the refrigerator defrosts slowly. What does that do to the ice cream, for instance?

7. Are you sure that the refrigerator you are buying is an up-to-date 1956 model?

Many apparent bargains in so-called up-to-date models are actually warehouse clearances of 1955 refrigerators.

A top quality refrigerator built without short cuts or skimping

GOLFERS REMINISCE AT HAPPY GET-TOGETHER

"It was like this," says Mrs. P. McCaffrey, Seattle, left, medalist in first day play in the 26th annual Empress Hotel Golf Tournament, as she explains how close her win was over Mrs. Art Roberts, Victoria, the runner-up. With Mrs. McCaffrey are, from the left, Mr. McCaffrey and Mr. and Mrs. Art Roberts. Another group of friends, at right, who claimed they "didn't play well but had a good time," were Judge and Mrs. Charles W. Redel, and Mr. and Mrs. Holt W. Berni, all of Portland. Get-together took place at the cocktail party, followed by supper and dancing at which the management entertained for the golfers, their husbands and wives Monday evening in the Crystal Ballroom at the Empress. Mr. Cyril Chapman and Mr. Charles Moore, manager and assistant manager of the hotel, with Mrs. Chapman and Mrs. Moore, welcomed the guests.

Between Ourselves

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Dolly Wilson is in town! Mrs. Charles E. Wilson if we're being formal.

She's here from Vancouver to attend the 26th annual Empress tournament. Her first appearance was at the supper dance in the Crystal Ballroom at the hotel Monday evening and the shouts and handclapping that heralded her appearance added a high note of warmth and friendship to the occasion.

Dolly held "court" at her table for the evening as friends, old and new, came to greet her. Mrs. Wilson, a former Victorian, holds a special place in the history of the Empress Hotel Golf Tournament. For many years, she acted as official hostess at this event and also planned, produced and acted in lavish extravaganzas that were a part of the entertainment program in the early years of the tournament.

Last night, in nostalgic memory of the days when, to use his own words "Dolly was the king-pin around here," Billy Tickle led his dance orchestra in "Donkey Serenade."

"You see I used to take a popular song and work out a theme for our productions around it," Mrs. Wilson explained as she sat back and listened to the lilting air.

"The resident carpenter and the painter at the Empress Hotel, made the donkey suit for the 'Serenade' and acted as the donkey. We got the donkey cart from the late Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Butchart who had brought it from Mexico to the Butchart Gardens. We decorated it with flowers and put flowers over the 'donkey's' ears.

"I was the senorita," Dolly Wilson reminisced, "my costume was white satin and I wore a white mantilla. I carried a basket of red flowers to toss to my friends around the ballroom."

Mrs. Wilson remembers that the "donkey" pulled the cart in from the conservatory and that she was seated in it. A gay cavalier in the person of Ian Angus, met her and as they circled the ballroom they sang and acted the "Serenade."

Chooses Cavalier From Crowd

"We ended up at a table where John Hart was sitting," Dolly Wilson said with a quick smile, "and the crowd loved it when I got rid of my cavalier and invited John to ride with me in the cart. We circled the ballroom and the shouts drowned out the music."

A bevy of chorus girls in Spanish costumes completed the extravaganza. They were Wynne Shaw, Myra Batchelor, Georgina Dowdall, Geraldine Paterson, Josephine Wilson, Lilla Foster, Diana Ker, Joan Forrest, Betty Moore, Maud Renwick, Diana Darling, Bernice McKelvie, Donna McInnes, Joy Winsby, Edna Wallace, Lois McMurchie, Molly McCallum, Molly Morton and one lone boy, Robert Lindgren.

At another tournament, it was an Indian theme and at still another, the setting was Chinese. "It kept me busy planning, and each year the production got bigger and bigger. It took weeks to prepare."

Not only did Mrs. Wilson plan and produce extravaganzas for tournament get-togethers, she also acted as an unofficial promoter of the tournament in those earlier years.

She and her husband Charles did a lot of traveling and wherever she went she would ask those she met: "Have you ever been to the Empress Golf Tournament in Victoria?" If the answer was in the negative she immediately took down the name in her little black book, passed it on to the management of the Empress who in turn sent the prospective visitor information on the tournament and a warm letter of invitation to attend.

"Nine times out of ten it worked," Mrs. Wilson says, "and the next year I'd find a host of new friends to greet me."

Many of these friends of Mrs. Wilson are still coming to the tournament.

Is it any wonder that "Dolly" is still considered as the unofficial hostess and that the Empress Hotel staff heaves sigh of relief when she appears. "Now the tournament is really under way," they say.

Mrs. Wilson and her companion arrived by boat from Vancouver Monday afternoon. "I've brought my car too," Dolly says, "and I'm going to get out to see some of the play."

"It's wonderful to be here with my friends!"

Daffodils and white pink and blue blossoms in tall standards were placed on the altar, and spring flowers marked guest pews. Organist J. H. Flatman provided wedding music.

Miss Cann was given in marriage by her father, and chose a white, floor-length gown of French lace and nylon tulle over taffeta, with matching jacket fashioned with long lily-point sleeves. The bouffant skirt of layers of tulle was encircled with bands of matching lace. A coronet of pearls and rhinestones held her scalloped-edge fingertip veil of illusion net. Red roses and white stephanotis were in her cascade bouquet.

Miss Beverley Sweeney, maid of honor, wore a floor-length dress of yellow net and lace over taffeta with head bandeau of yellow carnations, and carried matching flowers. The groom's sister, Miss Valerie Braithwaite, was bridesmaid, and wore a floor-length gown of blue dotted nylon net over blue taffeta with matching bandeau. Her bouquet was blue carnations. Little Janet Harris was flower girl in a floor-length pink dotted nylon net over taffeta dress with matching bandeau and cascade bouquet of carnations.

When they return from a honeymoon trip to California, Mr. and Mrs. Braithwaite will live in View Royal.

TEACHER SHORTAGE ACUTE

More Adults Than Children Attend School in Kitimat

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Times Business Editor
KITIMAT—This fast-growing aluminum centre faces a serious shortage of teachers created by the rapid increase in its juvenile population.

The shortage is partly due to the high birthrate among Kitimat's 8,500 inhabitants; partly to the expanding army of workers, and the influx of workers' families.

67 NEEDED

Only three years ago the single school house at Kitimat had a staff of five teachers. This has now grown to 35 and by next fall a total of 67 teachers will be needed.

"We have 800 students at present," Reeve P. W. Hallman said. "Within the next six years we expect to have at least 4,000 school-age children."

"We shall also need new buildings. Our school building program budgets an expenditure of $750,000 every year for the next three or four years."

Because of the many Europeans in Kitimat, night classes in English draw large numbers of smelter workers and their wives.

"We have actually more adults going to school than children," Reeve Hallman declared. "And the success of the classes is proven—hundreds of people who spoke little English when they came here a few months ago now converse fluently in our difficult language."

"Some of them write English so well that they are now able to contribute to our company newspaper, The Kitimat Ingot."

BEST PLANNED

Town planning is another major problem in Kitimat. When present plans materialize it will be one of the best laid-out cities in the world, with streets, paths and sidewalks designed to segregate pedestrians and children from auto traffic.

"This means that street accidents will be practically eliminated," says Jim Dudley, who is employed by the Aluminum Company of Canada as manager of Kitimat's real estate development.

CITY CENTRE

All parking will be off street. There will be a 100-acre city centre embracing a 200-room hotel, a municipal hall and a theatre. Two separate shopping centres are planned for what are called neighborhoods A and B.

Neighborhood A, comprising 1,300 family units, was built for workers employed in the first two potlines at the smelter. Neighborhood B, now under construction, will house workers on potlines three and four (number three went into production last week).

NEW CHURCHES

Seven or eight churches are planned and one of them, that of the Anglican community, is already rising on the outskirts of the city centre.

Most of the buildings in British Columbia's newest city will be limited to five or six storeys but there will be a main office building rising to eight storeys. "Because of the sand subsidence here, we think it inadvisable to build any higher than eight storeys," Jim Dudley said, "and even then our buildings will have to be pile driven."

So far the Aluminum Company has spent something like $250,000 on town planning, though the actual building is undertaken by outside contractors.

MASTER PLAN

A master plan for the future residential, commercial and industrial growth of Kitimat, prepared by the town planning consultants, is being implemented by a zoning by-law passed by the municipality.

Kitimat is therefore a planned community with adequate provision for roads, schools, parks, residential, commercial and industrial areas.

Occupying temporary premises in the smelter area are the Hudson's Bay Company, the Royal Bank of Canada, Bank of Montreal, a privately operated cafe, a travel bureau and a photographic and sporting goods store.

There is also a beer parlor seating 700 persons.

A number of concerns have established premises in the service centre, including a builder's supply company, a commercial hotel, a dairy, a garage, a tire shop, a plumbing business and a printing shop where the weekly newspaper the Kitimat Northern Sentinel is published. The municipality of Kitimat is administered by a reeve and six councillors and a municipal manager responsible to the council.

Water Negotiations Stall at Brentwood

'Why Worry, We're Still Getting Water' Says Dawson; No Rate Increase Foreseen

BRENTWOOD—Trustees of Brentwood Water Board were able to report little change in negotiations for a steady water supply when they addressed ratepayers Monday night at the W.I. Hall here.

The board draws water from Elk Lake, and has been endeavoring to secure it as a permanent source. A large crowd of water ratepayers was on hand for the report, given at the annual meeting of the district.

"We are still getting water, aren't we? Why should we worry?" said Victor Dawson, board chairman, after the meeting.

Lorne Thomson, trustee, said today the board had taken full precautions to protect the water supply. He said "we feel assured that we will not be disturbed without due notice, and that's good enough for us."

Mr. Dawson said the board was doing its best to reach an amicable settlement of the water question and is continuing negotiations with the federal department of transport and city of Victoria. (The city had offered Brentwood water from Elk Lake at 10 cents per 1,000 gallons, but Brentwood would have to pump the water from the lake.)

Mr. Dawson said the transport department is still operating the Elk Lake pump. It had notified the board that it would close its operations March 31.

NO INCREASE

Mr. Dawson gave the impression that under any new set-up there would be no increase in water rates.

Auditor R. W. Hamblett's report showed revenue from the sale of water in 1955 amounted to $7,910.67, less than $1,861.05 paid to the transport department for water.

Original installation of the waterworks system cost $54,765.60, while the Sea Drive and Benvenuto extension was completed at a cost of $32,240.43. Salaries and wages paid by the board for the year totaled $2,142.

Brentwood Stages Night Of Recreation

BRENTWOOD — Brentwood Community Club's fourth annual display night, held Saturday, was a colorful affair descriptive of the outstanding recreational activities of the district.

The display, staged in the Community Hall on Wallace Drive, opened with a grand march featuring boys and girls in uniform and costume of the various teams which have figured in Pro-Rec sports, softball, basketball and square dancing throughout the season.

Don McMuldloch, president of the Community Club, acted as master of ceremonies. The stage of the auditorium was lined with cups and other trophies won by teams and individual athletes during the past season.

John Tisdale, M.L.A. and Gordon Pynn praised the recreational achievements of the youngsters and enthusiasm of the leaders.

SCROLL PRESENTED

An interesting feature of the evening was presentation of an illuminated scroll in appreciation of the work of the club coaches and instructors, listing the following names: Ron Knott, Muriel Knott, Mrs. Joyce MacDonald, Stan Bickford, Harry Peard, James Creed, Clark Sluggert, Al Vickers, Al Burdon, Miss Esther May Burdon, William Lukinuk, Mrs. Mary Delamere, G. King, Mrs. Waldron, Mrs. Davidson, Clarence Covell and Victor Dawson.

The display concluded with a basketball game between boys' and girls' bantam teams and a square dancing session.

CD Group Launches Evacuation Plans

METCHOSIN — An emergency evacuation plan for the Metchosin area was launched at the April meeting of the Albert Head-Metchosin Civil Defence Group.

Residents would be directed to the western end of Kangaroo Road, where some natural protection is available.

S. D. Ranns, CD officer for the area, spoke of the importance of emergency kits, including foods, liquids and warm clothing.

Get Fire Protection

LANGFORD—Volunteer Fire Department here will extend fire protection to residents of Latoria Road between Wishart and Happy Valley Roads, as a result of a petition taken among residents.

The petition was taken after Langford firemen refused to attend a Latoria Road fire because the burning home was outside the Langford fire protection district.

Men's Cakes Sell Quickly In Sooke Stunt

SOOKE—Angel cakes sold for from $2 to $5 each at an auction sale held in Gibsons' Shopping Centre Saturday afternoon following a men's cake baking contest sponsored by Gibsons'.

All proceeds and prize money went to the organizations sponsoring the contestants.

Winners were Wm. Pitre, sponsored by the Evening Guild, Presbyterian Church, who won $25; Capt. P. W. de P. Taylor, Women's Auxiliary, Canadian Legion, $15; Jack Keating, Sooke P.T.A., $10. A special prize of $10 went to 12-year-old Kenneth Poirier, Jordan River Cubs, whose cake sold for the top price of $5.

Proceeds from the sale of the 17 cakes amounted to $47.25. Cakes were baked under supervision from one standard recipe.

Judges for the contest were Mrs. Walter Conder and Mrs. Eric Butler of Sooke, and Mrs. Louis Fatt of Jordan River.

Hostile Reaction Surprises Visiting Ambassador Stuart

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

U.S. Ambassador R. Douglas Stuart expressed surprise today at the hostile reaction in Ottawa to a speech he made Monday to the Canadian Club in Vancouver—his last before he retires from office next month.

Progressive Conservative party leader George Drew branded the speech as "inaccurate" and "unfortunate." John Diefenbaker (P.C. Prince Albert) termed it "an unwarranted intrusion by the ambassador of a friendly and neighborly country." M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, said it was "unusual" and "highly improper."

Mr. Stuart, in his address, denied charges of U.S. domination of Canadian industries and natural resources. He declared that from 1950 to 1954 Canada imported 56 per cent more iron ore from the U.S. than she exported to the U.S.

DREW HIT
He added that a "prominent Canadian" (Mr. Drew) had referred to the situation "emotionally rather than logically."

In an interview at Government House, where he is guest of Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross, genial 70-year-old Mr. Stuart smiled sadly and said: "Under the democratic system no man should be immune from criticism, but I am grieved that my friends in Ottawa should have interpreted my speech as anything other than an attempt to promote friendly relations between our two great countries."

"No one is more enthusiastic about Canada than I am. I have loved every minute of my stay in Ottawa. I have no political feelings one way or the other—my aim is solely to help both countries."

"The chief point I wanted to make was that Canada need not worry about an economic invasion by the United States. All new countries have been developed by foreign capital. Look at America—she was developed by British capital."

FUTILE FIELD
"There is nothing sinister about this. It is simply an economic fact that capital always seeks a fertile field. And Canada today is one of the most fertile fields in the world."

Mr. Stuart said he was on friendly terms with most members of the Ottawa government,

Warships Salute Monaco Lovebirds

Non-Stop Wedding Celebrations Signalled by Guns of 4 Nations

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY

MONACO (UP)—Visiting warships, small ones to Monaco's tiny harbor, thundered 21-gun salutes today to Prince Rainier and to Grace Kelly.

The international naval salute launched Monaco's non-stop wedding pageant that works up during the day to all-night dancing in the streets.

A series of jewel robberies that sent Rainier's police on a cops and robbers chase along the suddenly sun-swept Riviera lent some embarrassment to the pre-nuptial doings.

The course of love still ran smoothly but surely toward Miss Kelly's civil wedding to Rainier Wednesday.

Warships began easing into Monaco's tiny harbor at dawn to begin the official wedding festivities.

The U.S. destroyer Heerman, the French destroyer Kersaint, the British destroyer Dalrymple, and the Italian destroyer Albatross, fired 21-gun salutes promptly at 8 a.m., rattling windows throughout the principality.

Startled Monegasques peered anxiously as back from Rainier's palace battlements his own cannons boomed their answer. The show was on.

It was a non-stop program from now till the civil wedding at 11 a.m. tomorrow (2 a.m. Victoria time). The formal schedule includes:

4.30 p.m.—Two young girls of Monaco present Miss Kelly with a bouquet of flowers.

5 p.m.—A glittering palace reception for the diplomatic corps.

9 p.m.—A huge outdoor spectacle on a great platform in the palace courtyard.

11 p.m.—Dancing in the streets.

The religious ceremony uniting Grace and the Prince in the eyes of the Roman Catholic Church is at 10.30 a.m. Thursday (1.30 a.m. Victoria time) in Monaco's St. Nicholas Cathedral.

MONACO (AP)—Strains of Grace Kelly poetry waited here Monday.

Celebrated Yukon poet Robert W. Service, 82, read his ode to Grace Kelly, in a session at his home attended by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Kelly.

MOTHER CRIES
At one point, Mrs. Kelly shed some nostalgic tears.

Service's poem to Miss Kelly went:

Princess, what magic pen was dipped in radiant colors of romance
To write the wonder of your script, your fairy tale of chance,
Bringing us beauty, art and grace.

To welcome to this land of ours, and with our homage take your place,
'Mid song and flowers, long may you play your golden part,
Not only to ensky your name but to throne in every heart.

With health, fire and fame. The people, we proud of our past, from modern urgency of power,
Long have we hoped with faith steadfast to hail with ecstasy a star.

Sweet princess may our dream come true,
Our star be you.

CBC STANDS FAST AMID MONACO MADNESS

MONTREAL (BUP)—The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation will handle the Kelly-Rainier wedding in its regular newscasts with no arrangements for special coverage.

Radio-TV columnist Pat Pearce of the Herald commented: "It's a brave stand in a mad world."

Mickey Mantle, star center-fielder of New York Yankees, gained distinction of clouting first home run of new major league baseball season today.

He drove the ball out of the Washington ball park in the first inning of the presidential opener. President Eisenhower tossed out the first ball to herald the opening of the season.

Reds Back UN Peace In Mid-East

Soviet Campaigns To End Crisis

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union today called on Israel and the Arab states to settle their conflicts on a basis acceptable to both sides.

Russia offered to join other governments in an effort to reach a solution.

In one of the most important statements it has issued in recent times, the Soviet foreign ministry also called on both Israel and the Arab states to refrain from border incidents along the United Nations-approved frontier, and to improve the situation of 100,000 Arab refugees.

The statement said Russia would support any United Nations action to "strengthen peace in Palestine."

CLEAR PATH
Diplomats regard the statement as clearing the path for discussions in London on the subject of the Middle East—the world's No. 1 international problem.

The new move was foreshadowed when Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and First Deputy Prime Minister Anastas Mikoyan showed up at an Israeli Independence Day party Monday night.

The preamble of today's statement blamed increasing tension in the Middle East on the formation of military blocs such as the Baghdad Pact, which it called an effort to restore colonialism.

PRaises BRITAIN-FRANCE
However, it went out of its way to praise Britain and France for their post-war moves to assist the development and independence in the Near East region saying "the Soviet Union appreciates the actions of Great Britain and France which have contributed to a solution of the problem on the basis of the independence and sovereignty of the above-mentioned countries."

The statement outlined a three-point program for peace in the Middle East.

1. That the Soviet Union will support any United Nations action to strengthen peace in Palestine.

2. The Soviet Union considers that measures should be taken for this end without any interference from without.

3. The Palestine question should be settled, taking into account the interests of all parties. The Soviet Union is ready to assist in helping to achieve such a settlement.

COMINFORM DISSOLVED

MOSCOW (AP)—First deputy premier Anastas Mikoyan announced today the Cominform has been dissolved.

He told reporters there would be a long statement in Wednesday's Russian newspapers concerning the ending of the Stalin-founded organization, which bound together European Communist parties.

The Cominform Communist information bureau was set up at a secret meeting in Poland of Communist delegates from nine European countries Oct. 5, 1947.

It was the successor body to the Comintern Communist international, which was supposed to have been dissolved in 1943.

Sneak Thief May Steal Ride On Premier's Rail Passes

A Vancouver thief today is the possessor of Premier Bennett's passes on the PGE, CNR, and CPR.

A folder containing the premier's railway passes was among loot taken by thieves who broke into more than a dozen cars parked outside of Vancouver's Stanley Park pavilion Monday night.

The premier denied a valise belonging to him was taken. He said the valise was the property of his executive assistant, Ron Worley, and probably contained "a clean shirt."

The premier lost a topcoat, hat and scarf, in addition to the passes.

"Perhaps I should stay in Victoria, and stop travelling around," he quipped.

$2,800 Top Prize In 'No One Loses' Government Scheme

(AP and UP Dispatches)

LONDON—Chancellor of the Exchequer Harold Macmillan today proposed a state-run draw—with money prizes—to help Britain fight inflation.

He launched the scheme in his first budget presentation to the House of Commons since becoming chancellor of the exchequer last year.

The budget contained no income-tax increases but concentrated on ways to induce Britons to "save more." Macmillan's target is to effect savings of "not less than £100,000,000 in the current year."

The draw would be run on £1 savings bonds.

Drawers of the bonds would take part in a draw every three months, with big top prizes, up to £1,000 ($2,800), and a number of smaller prizes.

The premium bonds would be cashable at any time, but would not carry interest.

Instead, the bond numbers will be drawn in a lottery and the usual rate of interest shared among the winners of the draw.

He said a limit, to be announced later, will be placed on the number of bonds any individual can hold.

The holder will be eligible for the tax-free prize as long as he continues to hold the bond.

In announcing the spectacular and unprecedented plan, Macmillan said:

"This is something absolutely new. It is not gambling, for the subscriber cannot lose. The saver in the bond which I propose is saving his money."

Every bond buyer will get back his principal, the chancellor said. All that is at stake is the interest.

He said the plan is designed to encourage "the practice of saving and thrift by those members of the community who are not attracted by the reward of interest but do respond to the incentive of fortune."

STARTS IN YEAR
The chancellor added that he doubted whether the plan would be ready to go into operation this year or the beginning of 1957.

Macmillan's state-bond lottery plan follows, roughly, the pattern of Soviet Russia's lottery savings programs. A number of European countries run ordinary lotteries.

To encourage smaller savers the chancellor announced that better interest rates would be paid to holders of government national savings certificates after Aug. 1.

The chancellor proposed to exempt from income tax the first £15 of income derived from deposits in post office or trustee savings banks.

Macmillan said that for the time being the "credit squeeze"—making it more difficult to borrow money—must continue.

Macmillan looked off the last of the state subsidy on bread, thus forcing the price of a 1½-pound loaf up to ninepence halfpenny (11½ cents).

Other highlights of the budget: Restrictions on the capital borrowing powers of nationalized industries—railroads, coal, electricity and others.

Income tax reliefs on earnings from deposit bank accounts.

Tax on tobacco will be increased, raising the price of a pack of cigarettes from three shillings and eight pence to three shillings and 10 pence (33½ cents). Leaf tobacco, affecting cigar and pipe smokers, will go up three shillings a pound.

The tax on distributed and undistributed profits is increased to 30 per cent and 3 per cent respectively.

The family allowance—money paid by the government to parents on a basis of the number of their children—will be increased so that for third and subsequent children parents will receive 10 shillings instead of eight shillings a week per child.

PRAYER FOR TODAY
O GOD, we thank Thee for this day with its opportunities and its tribulations. We are grateful for the wisdom of Christ, which enables us to turn problems into privileges. Let us know that every question which disturbs us is primarily a moral question, and that we can never be wrong by deciding for the right; through our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, Amen.

B.C. Tory Hits Out At Highway Project

(From Times News Services)

Legislation aimed at producing a paved Trans-Canada Highway by the end of 1960 has been introduced after day-long Opposition argument that federal aid on the project doesn't go far enough.

Opposition criticism on a resolution preliminary to the government bill culminated Monday night in an amendment put forward by Davie Fulton (PC-Kamloops).

He proposed that provinces building the 4,580-mile highway be allowed to choose the section of the road on which a special 90-per-cent federal contribution will apply.

His amendment was defeated 74 to 38, all Opposition parties supporting it against the Liberal majority. The resolution then was adopted without formal opposition and the bill was introduced.

The 90-per-cent federal contri-

Discriminate Among Provinces

The bill also seeks Commons approval for an increase to $250,000,000 from $150,000,000 in the maximum federal commitment.

Mr. Fulton said the federal plan would discriminate among provinces. British Columbia had completed the most expensive sections in the mountains and the extra federal aid would apply to less costly parts of the B.C. route. Other provinces had built easy sections first and would get the 90-per-cent help in meeting their toughest sections.

Mr. Winters replied that each province will be able to take advantage of the 90-per-cent gap-closing formula with great advantage.

Ross Thatcher (Ind., Moose Jaw-Lake Centre) urged creation of a national highways commission to administer greatly expanded federal highways aid. Under the commission, the central government should pay $200,000,000 a year for the next 10 years on highway building.

Mr. Thatcher said his proposed national highways commission should undertake a four-point program to:

1. Provide funds on not less than a 50-50 basis for provincial construction of major east-west and north-south roads.
2. Help maintain the roads.
3. Devise a master plan for highway development.
4. Standardize construction and engineering specifications for highway building across the country.

Howard Green (PC, Vancouver-Quadra) said he doubts the highway bill will be completed even by 1960. The provinces deserved criticism for not making more progress, but the whole program had bogged down in

Politicians Fail 'Armed Truce World'—Simonds

Whole Nation Must Organize

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lt. Gen. Guy Simonds, former chief of staff of the Canadian Army, says he firmly believes Canada is unprepared either for war or for preventing war.

"There is no political leader in this country who will face up to the matter of organizing our national manpower—which goes far deeper than simply the conscription of all the youth of the country into the navy, army and air force," he said.

"We should not merely copy the conscription methods of the United States," he said in an interview, "for many features of the American system would not be adaptable. We must develop our own methods of military service."

"I do not think war is inevitable. But I am convinced a change of the Communist regimes to a more moderate way of thinking is only going to come about over a very long period of time."

"And to hold the ring in the meantime we are going to have to live in terms of armed truce—not for a few years but probably for a lifetime."

"If we were properly prepared for thermo-nuclear attacks, everyone would have a card telling him what the nation expects him to do in a crisis."

Gen. Simonds was here to address the Vancouver Institute of International Affairs Monday night.

In Victoria's Empress Hotel Wednesday he will address two Canadian Club luncheons on "Some Reflections on Canada's Defence Problem."

'IN GOD WE TRUST' NOW U.S.A. MOTTO

WASHINGTON (AP)—"In God we trust" is not the official motto of the United States, but the House of Representatives decided Monday it should be.

The house passed and sent to the senate a four-line joint resolution to establish as the "national motto" the phrase which has been appearing on coins since 1865.

Suspect Played Russian Roulette Murder Jury Told

VANCOUVER (CP)—One of two men accused of the murder of a Vancouver policeman played "Russian roulette" a few hours before the slaying, it was testified Monday.

The testimony came from Mrs. Noreen Carey, common-law wife of the other accused man.

James Carey, 27, and Joe Gordon, 34, are being tried before Mr. Justice A. M. Manson for the murder of Constable Gordon Sinclair Dec. 7.

Mrs. Carey in her third day on the witness stand said Gordon played Russian roulette with a .38 calibre pistol at her home on the night of the killing.

She said Gordon removed all the bullets from the gun but one and spun the cylinder before pointing the gun at his head. Gordon told her the weight of the single bullet carried it into a non-firing position.

The Crown alleges the fatal bullets were fired from a .38 calibre Webley gun.

Robert Smith, self-employed trucker, said Carey and Gordon jumped into his car in the area where the murder was committed shortly after Smith heard "what I thought were shots."

Smith told the court he saw a man "carrying a rifle" come out of a house near the spot where his car was parked. The man got into a small automobile and drove away.

REPORT DUE IN TWO MONTHS

New System Likely In Federal Paroles

OTTAWA (CP)—Establishment of a federal parole board may figure prominently among the recommendations of a special committee that has just completed almost 2½ years' study of Canada's parole methods.

The committee headed by Mr. Justice Gerald Fauteux of the Supreme Court of Canada is preparing its report to Justice Minister Garson who asked in October, 1953, for an "unrestricted" inquiry into parole, remission and related matters.

The report may be ready in about two months, it was learned Monday. It will be up to Mr. Garson to decide whether it should be made public. Normally such reports are for a minister's personal information.

A number of briefs to the four-man committee urged establishment of a parole board to replace the present system under which paroles are granted by the governor-general on the solicitor-general's recommendation. The minister acts after investigation of each case by the justice department's remission service.

The committee also is expected to deal with the question of a higher rate of probation. Many public figures, including Ontario Liberal Senator David Croll, have asked that the number of prisoners receiving tickets of leave from federal penitentiaries be boosted wherever possible.

The justice department's remission service has undergone extensive reorganization and has eased its policies somewhat in the last two or three years.

Last year, 1,345 tickets of leave were granted, up from 906 in 1954. There are roughly 5,500 men in federal penitentiaries.

Legion Helps EDMONTON (CP)—The Alberta Command of the Canadian Legion announced Monday it will grant $100 each to Alberta Victoria Cross winners attending the Victoria Cross centennial celebration in London, June 26.

Conciliation Officer Conciliation officer W. T. McLaughlin has been appointed by the labor department to act in a contract dispute between nine Victoria automobile firms and more than 300 members of Automotive Maintenance Workers' Federal Union local 151.

Employees are asking a 3½-cent-an-hour increase on present journeyman mechanics' rate of $1.78½ an hour, which would make the rate 10 cents an hour above Vancouver's $2.

Present minimum rate in other classifications is $1.06 an hour.

IRISH RETURN MASTERPIECE

LONDON (AP)—Irish Nationalists last night returned the $10,000 painting they stole from the Tate Gallery last Thursday. It was not damaged.

The painting was taken to the Irish embassy by an unidentified woman, then handed over to Sir John Rothenstein, director of the Tate Gallery.

NEW GAME REGULATION

By DENNY BOYD

For the first time, in 17 years, Vancouver Island anglers now are permitted to use fish-roe and fish-roe compounds in fresh-water sports fishing.

HODGES SENT TO PUEBLO

Victoria's Berlyn Hodges will find his baseball competition a little classier this year. Hodges, who won 16 games and lost five while pitching for Eugene of the Northwest League last season, was optioned Monday to Pueblo of the Class "A" Western League by Portland Beavers of the Coast League.

Calgary Gets Two Games in Edinburgh Cup

CALGARY (CP)—Two games of the Edinburgh Cup series will be played in Calgary, Stampede Corral manager Lloyd Turner announced Monday night.

In a conversation with Western Hockey League president Al Leader, Turner learned that one game between the eastern and western professional champions is definitely scheduled for the Corral Saturday, April 28.

Date of the other game will be known as soon as the respective champions are decided.

Joe's Charges Said Untrue

CHICAGO (AP)—Former heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott and ex-fight manager Jack Begun of Chicago appeared before the Cook county grand jury Monday but are reported to have failed to give proof of alleged irregularities in Illinois boxing.

Both men met with state attorney John Gutknecht before briefly facing the grand jury after being subpoenaed last week.

"It is evident that the statements made recently in connection with the boxing game Walcott and Begun are wild statements," said Gutknecht. "No factual information was brought to the state's attorney's attention. Unless other witnesses volunteer that they have knowledge of actual corruption in the Cook county or Illinois boxing game, there is no action that can be taken at this time."

Ponoka Evens Series

RED DEER, Alta. (CP)—Ponoka Stampedeers Monday night evened the best-of-seven Western Canada Intermediate A hockey final with a 7-5 win over Port Arthur Bearcats.

Bearcats won the first game 30-7 and the third will be played Wednesday night in Ponoka.

City Swim Crowns At Stake Saturday

City champions will be named in 24 events Saturday night at Crystal Garden pool when Victoria swimming championships will be staged.

Feature events will include the 200-yard freestyle relays for boys and girls under 17 for the Pro Patria and Britannia Branch trophies, and the individual medley swim for boys and girls under 17 for the Jack S. Todd trophies.

Remainder of the races will be held in four age brackets.

The strong YMCA team is again expected to dominate the meet, but strong opposition may come from the Victoria Swimming Club, which has been holding extra practice sessions.

Y.M.C.A. swimmers are re-

The ban on fish-roe as a lure was lifted by order-in-council March 15 and became public Monday when the 1956 B.C. sport-fishing regulations were released at the Victoria Game Office.

In previous regulations, Section 17 of the sport-fishing regulations in non-tidal waters stated: "When angling in any water in the Vancouver Island District, no one shall use or possess fish-roe of any kind or any compound of fish-roe and oil, or other substance."

Under the new regulations, this prohibition has been rescinded. Inspector George Stevenson of the Victoria Game Office said the lifting of the ban came as a result of appeals from Vancouver Island fish and game clubs.

MAJORITY OPINION

"The majority of their opinions favored lifting of the roe ban so we complied," said Inspector Stevenson.

"However," he added, "the same bag limits are still in effect, no matter what lure is used, so I don't think the use of fish-roe should make too much difference to the number of fish caught."

Inspector Stevenson added, "I think that the use of salmon eggs as a lure has been overrated through the years, if only because it was banned. Salmon eggs can be extremely potent at certain times of the year but over the course of a full fishing season I don't think roe or a compound would be any more effective than a good commercial lure."

In addition to lifting the fish-roe ban, the new regulations now permit angling in streams that flow into Cowichan Lake. Formerly, all streams flowing into the lake were closed to sports fishing.

A's Get Groth Via Waivers

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Kansas City Athletics picked up outfielder Johnny Groth via the waiver route from Washington Nationals today in an attempt to strengthen their outer defenses.

At the same time, the A's sent catcher Billy Shantz and outfielder Al Piliac to their Columbus farm club in the International League.

Aussies Name Head Number One Netter

MELBOURNE (AP)—Australian selectors Monday named Lew Hoad Australia's No. 1 tennis player.

Release of the national rankings put Hoad ahead of his Davis Cup teammate, Ken Rosewall, who topped the ranks last year.

ANGLERS MEETING

Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association will hold a meeting at the British Public Schools Club Thursday night at 8.

VIRGIL SETS THE PACE

Cheerful Virgil Pague of the Rainier Golf Club, Seattle, set the pace Monday at Victoria Golf Club to take medal honors in the qualifying round of the 26th annual Empress Golf Tournament. Virgil's score of 88-23-65 led the field of handicap swingers looking for a berth in the championship round.

Want To Be Medalist? Just Get Out of Town

By BILL RAYNER

If any of you golfers ever decide to shoot a net 65 in the medal round of the Empress Golf Tournament, take Virgil Pague's advice and leave town.

To be more specific, take a couple of weeks off and head for Acapulco, Mexico.

Virgil, with the timely help of a 23 handicap, breezed in with a 65 himself Monday at Victoria Golf Club to lead the men's qualifying round of the 26th annual Empress tournament, and he lays his success at the sunburned fairways and greens of the Mexican resort.

Just a weekend golfer at Seattle's Rainier Golf Club, with the scores to prove it, Pague up to Monday had accomplished nothing remotely spectacular in the five years he has been coming to the Empress tournament.

That was before he discovered Acapulco. His body a roasted brown from the Mexican sun, Pague explained it all Monday afternoon while changing clothes after his round.

"It was that steady golf down in Acapulco," said he. "Hitting that course every day down there gives a fellow a chance to get his game in shape. I had one of those good days today, of course, was hitting the ball well, but I had a chance to work up my game before I came up here."

Virgil's game was good on Monday, for a man with a 23 handicap. He was out in a 41, and back in 47 for a gross 88, 19 over par. He didn't pick up a birdie, but suffered no more than a double-bogie around the drafty course.

But before you rush off to pack your bags, take heed of Pague's two friends, D. R. Fisher and E. S. Martin. They also spent some time in Acapulco before heading for Victoria, but Fisher ended up with a net 76 Monday, while Martin came around in 85.

"That means a few dollars each they owe me," says Pague. "They had the same chances I did."

"But," he added as an afterthought, "maybe those few rounds I played in Honolulu in January helped, too."

MINORS NEED HELP

In the Greater Victoria Minor Lacrosse Association world, a cry for help has gone out.

President Doug Fletcher said Monday night that goalkeepers in the diaper, pee-wee and bantam divisions are badly needed.

Registration in the three divisions is good, he said, but there is a definite scarcity of goalies.

Registration will continue until April 28, when teams will be selected. There are still openings for boys with or without experience. Playing schedule and starting times next week at Stevenson Park follow:

Diaper league—Monday, 2:30 p.m.

Pee-wee league—Tuesday, 2:30 p.m.

Handicap Handy In Empress Golf

Mrs. McCaffrey, Virgil Pague Medalists

High-handicap golfers took full advantage of their strokes Monday to win medalist honors in the qualifying rounds of the 26th annual Empress Golf Tournament.

At Victoria Golf Club, Virgil Pague of Seattle checked in late in the afternoon with a net 65 to take the men's honors. Shooting from a 23 handicap, he went around the breezy Oak Bay layout in 88 gross.

In the ladies' qualifying round at Uplands Golf Club, Mrs. W. P. McCaffrey of Seattle and Uplands' Mrs. Art Roberts tied with net 77s, but Mrs. McCaffrey took medalist honors with a better score on the back nine. She shot a gross 107, with a 30 handicap, while Mrs. Roberts came in with 94-17-77.

It was the second straight year that Seattle golfers took medal honors in the tourney.

MATCH PLAY STARTS

Today, the first 32 qualifiers in each of the two divisions teed off in championship match play, followed by flights. The men will play at Victoria, while the women will play at Uplands, moving to Victoria for the semi-final and final rounds, Friday and Saturday.

Of the 32 men qualifying, three with net scores of 75 were picked from a hat containing 10 eligible swingers. Only 10 ladies failed to make the championship round from the disappointingly low entry of 42.

Runner-up to Pague was stocky Art Davis of Calgary, a regular visitor to the tournament. Also sporting a useful handicap, Davis came in early with 80-13-67, while tied for third place came another Californian, J. S. Poyen, with 74-6-68.

Leading the six Victoria golfers reaching the championship round was E. Gudewill, with a net 69. Others qualifying were Bill McColl, Keith Olson, C. J. Robertson, G. Cartwright and R. B. Wilson.

LOW GROSS LEADERS

McColl, only golfer in the tourney shooting from scratch, tied for low gross honors with D. W. Coons of Vancouver, Wash., who finished with a net 68. Both shot gross 73s.

Not faring so well were defending champs in both divisions. Lee Steil of Seattle was far back with a net 80 and did not qualify, while women's champ and medalist, Mrs. O. W. Smith of Seattle, came in with net 88 but still made the championship round.

Another past men's champion, George Goodwin of Colwood, posted a net 77 and failed to qualify, while several low-handicap swingers were also out of the running.

Victoria's distaff side will be well represented today at Uplands. Led by Mrs. Roberts, a total of 10 city ladies qualified for the championship round. Low gross, 90, went to Mrs. Harold Husband of Victoria.

Match play will continue all this week, with the finals to be played Saturday.

Angels Bop Mounties, Take Second Place

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (UP)—The Pacific Coast League race began to take some semblance of form today as Los Angeles moved up into second spot behind front running Seattle and San Francisco.

The Angels outslugged Vancouver 13-7 Monday in the only game of the day to muscle into second spot behind the hitting of centre fielder Jim Bolger, who drove in four runs. His biggest blow was a two-run homer off Tom Herrera in the sixth.

Jim Pisoni was the big man with the bat for the Mounties as he chased in three runs with a bases-loaded double in the fifth inning which highlighted a five-run uprising.

Manager Lefty O'Doul of Vancouver tossed four pitchers into the fray while Bob Scheffing of Los Angeles used three. The win went to Don Swanson and the loss to Ernie Funk. Swanson was the third Cherub hurler to take over while Funk started and was routed in the first frame.

Vancouver is at San Diego and Hollywood at Sacramento in a pair of night games tonight while Seattle is at San Francisco and Portland comes here for daylight contests.

NHL ALL-STARS NAMED

Habs Put Four On Dream Team

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Canadiens, runaway leaders of the National Hockey League all season and winners of the Stanley Cup, have placed four men on the NHL's all-star team.

The only unanimous choice was big Jean Beliveau, the league scoring champion and star centre for Canadiens. Doug Harvey missed a unanimous choice on defence by three points.

Goalie Jacques Plante, Montreal, the Vezina Trophy winner, won the all-star goalie berth, and Maurice Rocket Richard nailed down the right-wing position. Captain Ted Lindsay of Detroit won the left-wing spot.

The only surprise on the team was the selection of Bill Gadsby of New York over Red Kelly of Detroit for an all-star defence berth. Gadsby edged the Red Wings' star by two points.

Kelly had been selected five straight years to the first all-star team, but a stint as a forward this season hurt his chances of extending the string.

The team was selected by sports writers in all NHL cities.

Three members of Wings, two Canadiens and one Toronto player made the second team.

Glenn Hall won the call in goal, with Kelly and Tom Johnson of Montreal on defence. Tod Sloan of Toronto was picked to centre Gordie Howe of Detroit on right wing and Bert Olmstead of Montreal on left.

Each member of the first team received $1,000 from the NHL and the second-team players get $500.

RONNIE HOWELL

Spurns Rangers, Joins Tiger-Cats

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP)—Ron Howell, 20-year-old hockey and football player, has turned aside an offer from New York Rangers of the National Hockey League and signed up with Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four Football League, it was announced Monday.

Howell, who played three games with Rangers last season, including playoff contests with Montreal Canadiens, signed a Tiger-Cat contract Saturday, said general manager Jake Gaudaur.

The one-year contract permits Howell, son of a Hamilton storeowner and younger brother of Harry Howell, Rangers' captain, to play hockey following the football season.

The salary was not announced but the contract is believed to include a "substantial increase in pay" and a bonus.

Nine Commandments for Ball Fans

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP)—For baseball fans bubbling with "Amo, Amas, Amat" the Red Cross warns today on the opening of the season "Atroce Coerce Confidentium."

If you find that slightly incomprehensible (me, too) the translation from what is said to be Latin is:

While you may love baseball "Restrain excessive confidence."

The Red Cross (Brooklyn's baseball-conscious chapter, naturally) warns the Dodger fans not to let that last World Series victory go to their heads. Same might get busted.

But the advice is good whether you root for the New York Giants (perish forbid); such "Dodgers" as Pueblo, Newport News, Thomasville, Union City and Hornell or even the Keokuk Kernels or the Hotspring Bathers.

The Red Cross warns that often "the exigencies of fandom have caused illness, accidents and even shootings, on occasion." So if you want to increase your chances of being around for the next World Series, here are the suggestions for spectators:

1. Keep down your exultation enroute to the park so you don't lose sight of the ground and curbing. (Otherwise you may not wake up 'til after the game—if then).

2. Don't try to yell too loud and you'll avoid dislocated jaws and strained vocal cords. Yell more often, not louder. (It rattles the ump more that way, too).

3. Don't let the home team's errors put you in a carelessly bellicose mood. (Don't challenge cars, buses, etc., on the way home.)

4. Don't exaggerate physical rooting. Avoid extra jumping up and down, extra flailing and too much oomph in slapping your neighbor's back. You'll keep down the numbers of sprains, fractures and contusions. (To his back, arms, etc.—and to your nose.)

5. Avoid sitting on the edge of your chair in excitement. You'll be a sad sack fan with a fractured coccyx. (You might even hurt your back.)

6. Don't go too far in lording it over the losers. An extra taunt can lead to fist-cuffs and only Rocky Marciano has won 'em all. (If you have to do it, pick on the nearest midget.)

7. Avoid Roman-type feasting, overeating while cheering can cause ulcers, digestive disturbances and even choking. (Anyhow, the "hots" are usually cold and the pop is usually warm.)

8. You don't have to get all dressed up like Mrs. Stor's pet pony. To avoid strangulation, discomfort and trip-

ping, wear loose comfortable clothing. Ladies should wear low heels. (And for goodness sakes, no feathers in the hats.)

9. Still and all, don't bottle up your enthusiasm and let it gnaw away inside. Take that trip to the ball park and do your well-tempered rooting in the fresh air. (Don't throw that bottle at the TV screen. First, you lose the drink. Second, you just don't have a chance of hitting an umpire that way.)

Of course, when it comes to umpires, all these rules are to be completely disregarded, anyhow. Otherwise you might as well stay home and watch Howdy Dood.

Hume Still Hopes for Sunday Sport

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mayor Fred Hume said Monday night he refused to believe that Vancouver would miss out on Sunday commercial sport this year.

In Victoria earlier Monday, Premier Bennett told a press conference he is considering a province-wide plebiscite to decide the issue.

However, Mr. Hume said he still hopes for Sunday baseball in Vancouver "before very long."

KEFAUVER IN THIRD LONE STAND

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—New Jersey voted today in a primary election which found Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee in a familiar position—battling a state Democratic organization for the third time in little more than a month.

In New Hampshire and Minnesota he defeated state organizations which backed Adlai Stevenson for the Democratic presidential nomination. But today's election was not regarded as a direct test between the Tennessee senator and the 1952 Democratic presidential candidate.

Kefauver's 72 convention delegate-candidates opposed a slate headed by Governor Robert B. Meyner, who said he was personally neutral, and that his delegation would go to the presidential nominating convention uncommitted.

10 MINUTES TOO SHORT?

Walter Harris First Political TV Star

OTTAWA (BUP)—Handsome 52-year-old Walter Harris emerged as a new "star" in Canadian television Monday night with the introduction of political telecasting.

Harris, federal minister of finance and one of several cabinet ministers regarded as in line to succeed Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent as Liberal party leader, kicked off the new TV series, "The Nation's Business."

Following the pattern of an interview, Harris explained his new budget in layman's language, emphasizing the Liberal party philosophy behind it.

DREW AGAINST

The political telecasts, which will rotate among the four parties in the House of Commons, will be aired in English and French on alternate Monday nights. Conservative Leader George Drew will make the first telecast for his party April 30.

Harris said his prediction of a $1,500,000,000 growth in the gross national product, the total value of all goods and services produced in Canada during the year, indicated "prosperity" for the nation.

He said that the surplus of over $100,000,000 he budgeted for would go toward reduction of the national debt, and emphasized that in 10 years, the Liberal party would have reduced Canada's total debt by $2,000,000,000.

Asked what was in store for next year, Harris said jokingly he would let viewers in on a secret:

"There will be a budget."

That ended the telecast, with the only flaw in the program that appeared to stand out to a group of 30 members of parliament who watched it in the Commons writing room. The program was not long enough to fill the 10-minute period, and there was an awkward pause while Harris looked uncomfortable, waiting for the sign-off.

Most of the members watching the telecast in "room 16"—the room which once was the parliamentary bar before the parliament building fire of 1916—were Liberals. They said the 10-minute period was not long enough.

(B) "MIRACLE IN THE RAIN" (Royal)—This can be rated one box of Kleenex or four man-size handkerchiefs. It's the wettest thing since "East Lynne" or maybe since the Gish sisters did "Orphans in the Storm."

It happened this way. Jane Wyman is a beautiful, beautiful girl whose life is a monotonous round-trip ticket between office and mama. Mama (Josephine Hutchinson) has been pining away for hubby William Gargan who forsook her for something gayer 20 years before. Then one day the "miracle in the rain" happens. Jane, homeward bound, is picked up by soldier-on-leave-in-New York Van Johnson.

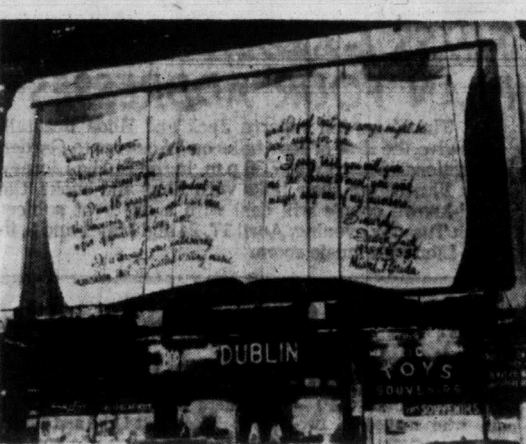

RIGHT OFF THE BAT. Veteran theatre-goers will sense that Johnson is due for an honorable discharge before long. Johnson's too merry and bright to last. He laughs, jokes, drinks beer, makes love and refuses to behave as any self-respecting soldier should in a rainy, blue, hopeless old world.

Patrons should enjoy him while he lasts, which isn't long. Halfway through "Miracle in the Rain" Johnson is killed on the battlefield and from that moment on it's good weather only for ducks and arks.

FORTUNATELY THE girl finds comfort in St. Patrick's Cathedral and eventually papa comes home to mama, Van peeks in from Heaven, and things look up a mile.

But it's still raining furiously—inside and out. It is unfortunate that Warner had to feature such excellent actors in such a weary melodrama. The character delineations by Miss Wyman and Van Johnson are commendable even if their plight seemed man-made rather than life-made. Special huzzas to Miss Heckart, Miss Wyman's plain-Jane girl friend.

The letter asks the chance to meet Como and audition a Luck musical composition. A representative of Como said that if Luck's songs are any good, Como will give them consideration.

Disregard Top-Blower Expert Tells Managers

When a worker "blows his top" he does not necessarily dislike his job or his manager, Dr. Samuel Rosenstein of Marquette University, Milwaukee, told 150 Vancouver Island businessmen last Saturday.

"Managers should beware of taking these explosions personally," said Dr. Rosenstein, conducting a one-day course in "supervision, human relations and man management" at the Fox Theatre.

"Very often they are the consequence of problems and pressures that have nothing to do with a man's job—and the competent manager should not regard them as an affront to himself or the firm."

Dr. Rosenstein emphasized that the main qualification for a manager is not so much knowing the job to be done as knowing how to manage.

He added that one of the leading causes of discontent among workers is the feeling of not being appreciated.

"Tact and understanding are more needed in the management field than any other," he said.

"Just to make the whole thing official, the cocktail has been registered by the British Bartenders' Guild," an Alcan official said.

Province-Wide Conservation Body Planned

Formation of a B.C. federation of naturalists to fight for the conservation of natural resources was proposed at a joint meeting here of the Victoria and Vancouver Natural History Society on the weekend.

J. O. Clay, an official of the local society, said the meeting took no action to form a federation, but steps will be taken in the near future to initiate a provincial-wide organization.

Some 30 Vancouver naturalists headed by A. Wootton, William Hughes and Stewart Bradley were present at the meeting.

Naturalists feel there is a definite need for a federation of naturalists to protect wildlife and the alienation of park areas by provincial and civic governments.

The Vancouver visitors met with Victoria society members at the Provincial Museum on Saturday afternoon, and 53 members of the combined group took part in a field day Sunday, under direction of Miss Enid Lemon and Mr. Clay.

The day was spent in the Sidney area where 67 varieties of birds were noted, including the European skylark.

Man Who Sent Bank by Mail Brick by Brick Dies in Utah

HAYDEN, Utah (AP) — The man who mailed a two-story bank to eastern Utah has died here. He was 72-year-old William Horace Coltharp, pioneer Utah Basin businessman and president of the Bank of Vernal.

When Coltharp built his bank in nearby Vernal, Utah, in 1919, he discovered he could save $1.45 on each hundred pounds of bricks by shipping them from Salt Lake City via parcel post rather than by railroad freight.

The thousands of bricks needed to build the structure all went parcel post. And, because there was no direct mail route between Salt Lake and Vernal—175 miles apart—the post office had to ship the bricks over a 407-mile route south to Price, Utah, and via Mack, Colo., using the railroad, trucks and teams—and wagons.

The United States post office department soon changed its regulations after harried local postal authorities complained. But by that time the bank was completed. It still operates today.

Scores Want $800-a-Month D.E.W. Jobs; Few Qualify

Requests for $800 per month jobs on the Distant Early Warning radar line have been pouring into the Victoria National Employment Service office in a steady stream, according to C. A. Mudge, manager.

"But not all of the applicants yet have had the required qualifications," he said. A few have written, some have called in person, and "50 or 60" have telephoned for information, Mr. Mudge said.

"I believe the contractor in charge of the job will be looking for technical ability and training," Mr. Mudge said. "If an applicant has a good background in electronics, or practical experience as a radar operator, we can take his name. If he has no experience in these fields, then his application cannot even be considered at the present time."

Applications for the substantial salaries began pouring into NES offices across Canada following an Ottawa announcement that civilians would be paid $800 monthly on the D.E.W. line.

NES officials are awaiting a list of job requirements from the United States agency that will be operating the far north radar line, he said.

Careless Driving Brings $40 Fine

Fine of $40 or five days in jail and a licence suspension was imposed on Robert E. Cummings, HMCS Naden, when he pleaded guilty Monday in Esquimalt police court to a careless driving charge.

The charge arose after he lost control of his car on Esquimalt Road near Macaulay, skidded 400 feet and struck curbs on both sides of the road before turning over, police said. Fined $35 or five days in jail was Leslie J. Folland. Court heard that he backed from a driveway on to Craigflower Road and the rear of his vehicle was in collision with a car driving west on Craigflower. Damages were $210.

Weakness for Woman Led to Visa Racket

MONTREAL (CP)—A former Canadian immigration officer has blamed a weakness for an Italian woman for plunging him into a visa racket that cost him his job and landed him in court.

George G. Wilson, 39, arrested in Toronto several months ago, is one of five men charged in connection with the illegal entry of Italian immigrants to Canada between 1950 and 1952.

He testified here at the preliminary hearing of two of the accused — Montreal lawyer Mario Lattoni, 53, and Victor Corbo, 30, mayor of nearby St. Eustache. Wilson, 51, Montreal travel agency operator, and Adlo

Cecchi, former employee of the Italian consulate in Montreal, had their hearings postponed to a later date.

SUCCUMBED TO CHARMS

Wilson, taking the witness box under protection of the court, said his downfall began in Rome in the spring of 1951 when a girl named Carmela LoCaseo offered him love in exchange for a visa.

"In return for her favors I issued a visa for her brother," Wilson said.

He said he succumbed to Carmela's charms a second time. On neither occasion did he, as agent of Canada's citizenship and immigration department, question nor interview the applicants.

Another time, Wilson said, a man came to him and demanded he issue another visa.

"He said he knew about the previous two cases and that if I didn't issue the visa he'd talk,"

ADMITS OTHER OFFENCES

Wilson said he later was transferred from Rome to Naples and that he eventually issued between 70 and 75 irregular visas.

Ends fear of blowouts!
Ends fear of punctures!
Ends fear of skids!
Gives longer, safer mileage!

Now from Firestone comes the automatic safety tire... the new Firestone Super 500 with Life Protector. It gives you and your family supreme protection against highway hazards for its three great new safety features make it the tire with built-in peace of mind.

Blowout Safety! Should a blowout occur, an automatic safety valve instantly closes in the life protector and retains 3/4 of the air. This lets you ride out a blowout—even on a high-speed super highway, without swerving and without danger. This is built-in peace of mind.

Tubeless Safety! With the Super 500, roadside delays caused by punctures are reduced by 99%. That's because the patented Saffi-Liner clings to penetrating objects preventing loss of air, and in the worst cases changes a puncture to a slow leak. This is built-in peace of mind.

Nylon Safety! The 500 is an all-nylon tire—91% stronger than ordinary tires to give greater resistance to impact breaks on rough roads. Developed at the Indianapolis Speedway, the 500 is safer at sustained high speeds on modern super-highways. This is built-in peace of mind.

MAKE THE SAFETY SWITCH TO-DAY

Firestone Dealers will buy all the unused mileage in your present tires. Most Firestone Dealers have convenient budget terms.

When buying your new car, make sure it has the last word in safety—be sure to specify the Firestone Super 500.

Hume Still Hopes for Sunday Sport

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Fred Hume said Monday night he refused to believe that Vancouver would miss out on Sunday commercial sport this year.

In Victoria earlier Monday, Premier Bennett told a press conference he is considering a province-wide plebiscite to decide the issue.

However, Mr. Hume said he still hopes for Sunday baseball in Vancouver "before very long."

KEFAUVER IN THIRD LONE STAND

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—New Jersey voted today in a primary election which found Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee in a familiar position—battling a state Democratic organization for the third time in little more than a month.

In New Hampshire and Minnesota he defeated state organizations which backed Adlai Stevenson for the Democratic presidential nomination. But today's election was not regarded as a direct test between the Tennessee senator and the 1952 Democratic presidential candidate.

Kefauver's 72 convention delegate-candidates opposed a slate headed by Governor Robert B. Meyner, who said he was personally neutral, and that his delegation would go to the presidential nominating convention uncommitted.

10 MINUTES TOO SHORT?

Walter Harris First Political TV Star

OTTAWA (BUP)—Handsome 52-year-old Walter Harris emerged as a new "star" in Canadian television Monday night with the introduction of political telecasting.

Harris, federal minister of finance and one of several cabinet ministers regarded as in line to succeed Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent as Liberal party leader, kicked off the new TV series, "The Nation's Business."

Following the pattern of an interview, Harris explained his new budget in layman's language, emphasizing the Liberal party philosophy behind it.

DREW AGAINST

The political telecasts, which will rotate among the four parties in the House of Commons, will be aired in English and French on alternate Monday nights. Conservative Leader George Drew will make the first telecast for his party April 30.

Harris said his prediction of a $1,500,000,000 growth in the gross national product, the total value of all goods and services produced in Canada during the year, indicated "prosperity" for the nation.

He said that the surplus of over $100,000,000 he budgeted for would go toward reduction of the national debt, and emphasized that in 10 years, the Liberal party would have reduced Canada's total debt by $2,000,000,000.

Asked what was in store for next year, Harris said jokingly he would tell viewers in on a secret:

"There will be a budget."

That ended the telecast, with the only flaw in the program that appeared to stand out to a group of 30 members of parliament who watched it in the Commons writing room. The program was not long enough to fill the 10-minute period, and there was an awkward pause while Harris looked uncomfortable, waiting for the sign-off.

Most of the members watching the telecast in "room 16"—the room which once was the parliamentary bar before the parliament building fire of 1916—were Liberals. They said the 10-minute period was not long enough.

(B) "MIRACLE IN THE RAIN" (Royal)—This can be rated one box of Kleenex or four man-size handkerchiefs. It's the wettest thing since "East Lynne" or maybe since the Gish sisters did "Orphans in the Storm."

It happened this way. Jane Wyman is a beautiful beaux-less girl whose life is a monotonous round-trip ticket between office and mama. Mama (Josephine Hutchinson) has been pining away for hubby William Gargan who forsook her for something gayer 20 years before. Then one day the "miracle in the rain" happens. Jane, homeward bound, is picked up by soldier-on-leaves-in-New York Van Johnson.

RIGHT OFF THE BAT, veteran theatre-goers will sense that Johnson is due for an honorable discharge before long. Johnson's too merry and bright to last. He laughs, jokes, drinks beer, makes love and refuses to behave as any self-respecting soldier should in a rainy, blue, hopeless old world.

Patrons should enjoy him while he lasts, which isn't long. Half-way through "Miracle in the Rain" Johnson is killed on the battlefield and from that moment on it's good weather only for ducks and aries.

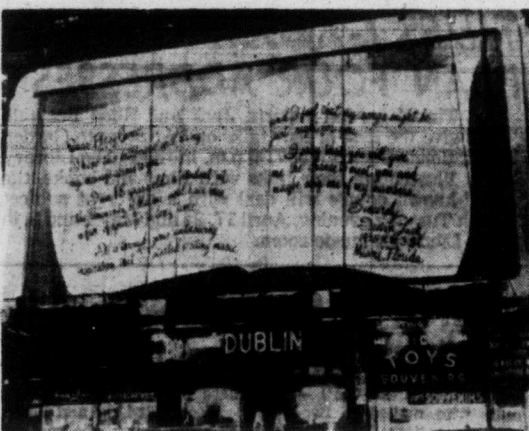

Not that anyone can blame Jane for feeling sad. Because what with her unhappy mama, her errant pappy and loss of her only lover, an old snapshot taken in Central Park, Van's mother's ring on her engagement finger can't seem much of a swap. Only office pal Eileen Heckart prevents her from pulling a Brodie.

FORTUNATELY THE girl finds comfort in St. Patrick's Cathedral and eventually papa comes home to mama. Van peeks in from Heaven, and things look up a mile.

But it's still raining furiously—inside and out. It is unfortunate that Warner's had to feature such excellent actors in such a weary melodrama. The character delineations by Miss Wyman and Van Johnson are commendable even if their plight seemed man-made rather than life-made. Special huzzahs to Miss Heckart, Miss Wyman's plain-Jane girl friend.

Sheriff's officers were notified and they applied artificial respiration, but were unable to revive the boy, after he had been pulled from the water.

The accident happened near Seven Mile, just west of the Spokane River.

Disregard Top-Blower Expert Tells Managers

When a worker "blows his top" he does not necessarily dislike his job or his manager, Dr. Samuel Rosenstein of Marquette University, Milwaukee, told 150 Vancouver Island businessmen last Saturday.

"Managers should beware of taking these explosions personally," said Dr. Rosenstein, conducting a one-day course in "supervision, human relations and man management" at the Fox Theatre.

"Very often they are the consequence of problems and repressions that have nothing to do with a man's job—and the competent manager should not regard them as an affront to himself or the firm."

Dr. Rosenstein emphasized that the main qualification for a manager is not so much knowing the job to be done as knowing how to manage.

He added that one of the leading causes of discontent among workers is the feeling of not being appreciated.

"Tact and understanding are more needed in the management field than any other," he said.

"Just to make the whole thing official, the cocktail has been registered by the British Bartenders' Guild," an Alcan official said.

Fashion Show Chair Collapse Results in Suit

An accident at a T. Eaton Co. fashion show is the basis of a civil suit which opened before Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane in Supreme Court today.

Mrs. Mabel Olive Woodburn, 1518 Fell Street, claimed unstated damages from the firm for injuries she sustained when a chair collapsed beneath her at a fashion show on March 11 last year.

As the chair collapsed, she alleged, she was thrown against a partition decorated with ferns which toppled on her.

The plaintiff claimed that as a result of the accident she suffered a serious injury which necessitated an operation. She is asking for special and general damages, alleging negligence on the part of the firm.

WELL PLAYED—YA BUM!

By PETE LOUDON

Oak Bay council was caught on a sticky wicket Monday by a clash between cricket and baseball.

The problem of sharing Windsor Park playing area between Victoria District Cricket Association and baseball's Colt League was turned over to parks committee and municipal engineer A. S. G. Musgrave.

The difficulties were brought to light in a letter from the cricketers signed by Capt. J. A. Hobday. Capt. Hobday also appeared before council.

He said the new baseball diamond in Windsor Park was merged with the outer portion of the cricket ground.

"It's a shocking thing for anyone from England to come and see us playing under these conditions," he said.

"Deep cover is standing on the mound... second base and the extra cover wouldn't get along very well," he added in pointing out that cricket has been a Sunday tradition in the park and now the Colt League has weekend schedules.

In the 11 years the cricket players have used the grounds only softball has also been played in the park. He said he knew nothing of the inroads of baseball until a player phoned him, "Bum, have you seen our cricket ground?" He went to the ground and saw a roto-tiller preparing a diamond.

He said there had been suggestion since then that the cricket ground be moved to Carnarvon Park, but, "Gentlemen, you can't play cricket on a potato field."

He related how the cricketers had weeded and seeded the present ground and cared for the pitch. They built a shed for their equipment and let the municipal parkmen use it also.

"We have a great following come down and bring their own chairs and bring their tea."

Capt. Hobday said he wasn't opposed to baseball and stated there was no greater ball fan than him. He would often go to Athletic Park for a ball game after an afternoon of cricket.

"After saying 'Well played, old boy' in the afternoon I'd shout 'Stick it in his ear' in the evening just like the next fellow."

He said since learning of the baseball schedule he had arranged that the cricketers would play no Sunday games and wanted no special concessions immediately. But he said he begged and prayed council "... to please preserve cricket."

Where there were numerous grounds in years gone by, now there were only Windsor Park and Beacon Hill besides the private field at University School. Yet in Vancouver there were seven cricket fields until recently and now there are nine.

"An error by the 1953 council" is the way Coun. P. F. Birley expressed the situation. Coun. C. H. G. Mann felt the baseballers "... shouldn't be allowed to play there on Sunday. I think the cricketers have had a raw deal."

POTATO CRICKET

He said there had been suggestion since then that the cricket ground be moved to Carnarvon Park, but, "Gentlemen, you can't play cricket on a potato field."

He related how the cricketers had weeded and seeded the present ground and cared for the pitch. They built a shed for their equipment and let the municipal parkmen use it also.

Car Licence Grant Asked by Alderman For Street Repair

Walk-Out Threatened In City Budget Talk

A share of government gasoline and car licence taxes should be returned to municipalities to take the responsibility for street repairs off the shoulders of landowners, according to city alderman Geoffrey I. Edgelow.

He pushed a motion through a heated public works meeting today asking council to seek the added provincial aid through demands on the government, possibly through the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

At present he says many of the landowners paying for roads are retired pensioners who don't even own cars.

"Most of our taxpayers are pensioners," he stated, "Have you had any phone calls lately?" he asked the committee.

Sparked by Ald. Edgelow's enthusiasm the committee pared $66,143 from the $387,057 proposed budget of city engineer J. C. Garnett.

At one point in the meeting Ald. Edgelow stood up and threatened to leave, complaining the committee was pushing through the estimates without sufficient discussion.

"I can't see any sense in staying here. I have no intention of wasting my time... we're going to have an awful shock when we get to the end of the budget. I know as well as you we're going to face an increase."

Brushing aside objections by other members of the committee that the 1955 budget was only 68 per cent of the one proposed in 1951, he still felt that costs this year could not be allowed to rise.

Mr. Garnett's 1956 budget however is based, he says, on need to look ahead rather than based on last year's expenditure.

The public works scheme is for inauguration of a perpetual maintenance system which would avoid the need for periodic streets-by-law loans.

Mr. Garnett wants a similar plan for renewing the city's sewers. Cost of the proposed road program would be $275,861 per annum for 20 years to bring the city's 152 miles of streets to a common level of excellence.

At the end of that period, periodic maintenance would cost $203,000 annually.

Result is the 1956 estimates, before cutting began, were $134,948 higher than the amount asked last year.

CAN OVERPLAN

The alderman said the engineer was a "miracle man" if he could plan so far ahead. "I think you can overplan. I've ridden over roads in England that the Romans built," Mr. Garnett said that was because they had received adequate maintenance.

Ald. Edgelow said that in view of ever-increasing traffic locally, the landowner was being imposed upon for road upkeep. He said if the government was to share gas and li-

TOTEM GOES TO NEW SPOT ON SATURDAY

Next move for the world's latest totem will be a short one—from the carving shed at Thunderbird Park to the civil service parking lot, Belleville and Government.

Painting will be finished by the end of the week, and the pole will be moved by Heaney Cartage and Storage, commencing at 9 a.m. Saturday.

The pole will remain in the lot until moved to its permanent site.

875 Mounties In Province Get Wage Boost

RCMP pay increases announced today will effect approximately 875 uniformed officers and men in B.C., Victoria headquarters said today.

The increases, first in 28 months, are retroactive to April 1, and apply to 4,500 in Canada. Not included are the salaries of $17,500 a year of commissioner L. H. Nicholson and deputy and assistant commissioners.

Pay of a third-class constable will rise by $4 a week to $50 or to $2,640 a year; that of a second-class constable with one year's service by $240 a year to $3,000; and that of a three-year service, first-class constable by $192 to $3,240.

New corporals will get $300 a year more, boosting pay to $4,320; sergeants another $312 to $4,740; inspectors, $492 to $6,960; superintendents—and there are only 23 of these—up $528 to $7,920 a year or $152 a week.

ASK The TIMES

Q—I am under the impression the temperatures this spring have been lower than usual. Is that correct?—M.W.

A—As reported by William Mackie of Gonzales Observatory, Meteorological Observatory, the mean temperature for February was 36.9, which was 4.3 degrees lower than normal. The sunshine totaled 56.5 hours, the lowest in 48 years of recording. The connection between the lower sunshine total and the lower mean temperature is plain. In March the mean temperature was 41.6, which was 2.6 degrees below normal.

Q—Where is the Saugeen River?—D.L.H.

A—It is a stream which rises in the highlands of southern Ontario and, after flowing in a northerly direction for more than 100 miles, empties into Lake Huron at Southampton.

Sun-Time, Fun-Time Clothes

By PENNY SAVER

Everywhere I looked today I got glimpses of spring and summer. Store windows are blooming with tempting new clothes in the brightest colors, each trying to outdo the other. The effect is wonderful! Even on a drab day, we know spring's around by merely looking at the new clothing arrivals. Accessories that spell fun are a vital part of the picture, too. The trend is to larger, eye-attracting bags this season, and the carry-all tote bags I saw are right in top fashion. There are two styles. One is of crinkly plastic in rose, chartreuse, rust-red or aqua. The other is of plastic-covered fabric in gay designs. There are varied colored polka dots on white and scenic and modernistic patterns that reflect dozens of colors.

These purses have a centre zippered section, with two open sections on either side. Twin clutch handles go over the top.

White snapdragons and daffodils decorated the rooms. A three-tier wedding cake surrounded by white and pink carnations centred the bride's table. T. Cuthbertson, uncle of the bride, proposed the toast.

For travelling in the United States on honeymoon, Mrs. Arkinstall chose a white and navy silk dress topped with navy corded taffeta duster. She wore navy and pink accessories and a corsage of deep pink rapture roses and white heather. The couple will live in Victoria.

The bride was charming in her strapless gown of nylon net over silk with matching jacket styled with three-quarter-length sleeves and stand-up collar. She wore a white headpiece studded with pearls and sequins that held a shoulder length veil, and she carried a bouquet of deep pink rapture roses with white heather. Her jewelry was the groom's gift, a rhinestone necklace and earrings set.

Maid of honor was Miss Wilma Wright, who wore a gown of violet taffeta topped with pale mauve crystalline, toned to match the heather in her bouquet of white carnations and heather. Her head-dress and gloves were of matching mauve crystalline and her necklace and earrings were white crystal.

Brother of the groom, Harry Arkinstall, was best man and ushers were Phillip Austin and Peter Doherty.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where

Will you be numbered among those women
who will regret buying
a refrigerator
this year?

In this era of mass production, some manufacturers take short cuts utilizing surface tinsel and flash—and pay insufficient attention to long-lasting quality

If you intend to buy a refrigerator this year, protect your investment by asking your dealer these 7 questions:

1. Do I need an ice-scraper or a pan of hot water to defrost the freezer compartment of the refrigerator?
If the answer is yes, you are not getting a fully automatic defrosting refrigerator.

2. When my arms are loaded with food, will I be able to open the refrigerator door by touching the handle with my elbow?
If the answer is no, you are getting a less efficient pull-handle type door latch.

3. Is the refrigerator deep enough to hold a turkey without removing shelves?

If the answer is no, the depth of the shelf area is less than 16", which is inadequate for sizable food storage.

4. Does a round shelf hold more food than a square shelf in the same size refrigerator?

If the answer is yes—don't believe it. Place a round shelf on top of the square shelf and you will see that you have been deprived of food storage space—as much as 20%.

5. Can you put quart bottles or 1/2 gallon bottles in the door?

If the answer is no, the refrigerator has a shallow door, which means that you must put these big bottles inside the refrigerator itself—again robbing food storage space.

6. Does the refrigerator defrost by hi-speed electricity or does it push hot gas through tubing coils?

If it is the latter, the refrigerator defrosts slowly. What does that do to the ice cream, for instance?

7. Are you sure that the refrigerator you are buying is an up-to-date 1956 model?

Many apparent bargains in so-called up-to-date models are actually warehouse clearances of 1955 refrigerators.

A top quality refrigerator built without short cuts or skimping should give you 10 or more years top quality performance. Therefore, be sure to ask the above questions before you buy—and you will have no regrets.

TEACHER SHORTAGE ACUTE

More Adults Than Children Attend School in Kitimat

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Times Business Editor

KITIMAT—This fast-growing aluminum centre faces a serious shortage of teachers created by the rapid increase in its juvenile population.

The shortage is partly due to the high birthrate among Kitimat's 8,500 inhabitants; partly to the expanding army of workers, and the influx of workers' families.

67 NEEDED

Only three years ago the single school house at Kitimat had a staff of five teachers. This has now grown to 35 and by next fall a total of 67 teachers will be needed.

"We have 800 students at present," Reeve P. W. Hallman said. "Within the next six years we expect to have at least 4,000 school-age children."

"We shall also need new buildings. Our school building program budgets an expenditure of $750,000 every year for the next three or four years."

Because of the many Europeans in Kitimat, night classes in English draw large numbers of smelter workers and their wives.

"We have actually more adults going to school than children," Reeve Hallman declared. "And the success of the classes is proven—hundreds of people who spoke little English when they came here a few months ago now converse fluently in our difficult language."

"Some of them write English so well that they are now able to contribute to our company newspaper, The Kitimat Ingot."

BEST PLANNED

Town planning is another major problem in Kitimat. When present plans materialize it will be one of the best laid-out cities in the world, with streets, paths and sidewalks designed to segregate pedestrians and children from auto traffic.

"This means that street accidents will be practically eliminated," says Jim Dudley, who is employed by the Aluminium Company of Canada as manager of Kitimat's real estate development.

CITY CENTRE

All parking will be off street. There will be a 100-acre city centre embracing a 200-room hotel, a municipal hall and a theatre. Two separate shopping centres are planned for what are called neighborhoods A and B.

Neighborhood A, comprising 1,300 family units, was built for workers employed in the first two potlines at the smelter. Neighborhood B, now under construction, will house workers on potlines three and four (number three went into production last week).

NEW CHURCHES

Seven or eight churches are planned and one of them, that of the Anglican community, is already rising on the outskirts of the city centre.

Most of the buildings in British Columbia's newest city will be limited to five or six storeys but there will be a main office building rising to eight storeys. "Because of the sand subsoil here, we think it inadvisable to build any higher than eight storeys," Jim Dudley said, "and even then our buildings will have to be pile driven."

So far the Aluminium Company has spent something like $250,000 on town planning, though the actual building is undertaken by outside contractors.

MASTER PLAN

A master plan for the future residential, commercial and industrial growth of Kitimat, prepared by the town planning consultants, is being implemented by a zoning by-law passed by the municipality.

Kitimat is therefore a planned community with adequate provision for roads, schools, parks, residential, commercial and industrial areas.

Occupying temporary premises in the smelter area are the Hudson's Bay Company, the Royal Bank of Canada, Bank of Montreal, a privately operated cafe, a travel bureau and a photographic and sporting goods store.

There is also a beer parlor seating 700 persons. A number of concerns have established premises in the service centre, including a builder's supply company, a commercial hotel, a dairy, a garage, tire shop, a plumbing business and a printing shop where the weekly newspaper the Kitimat Northern Sentinel is published.

The municipality of Kitimat is administered by a reeve and six councillors and a municipal manager responsible to the council.

Water Negotiations Stall at Brentwood

'Why Worry, We're Still Getting Water' Says Dawson; No Rate Increase Foreseen

BRENTWOOD—Trustees of Brentwood Water Board were able to report little change in negotiations for a steady water supply when they addressed ratepayers Monday night at the W.I. Hall here.

The board draws water from Elk Lake, and has been endeavoring to secure it as a permanent source. A large crowd of water ratepayers was on hand for the report, given at the annual meeting of the district.

"We are still getting water, aren't we? Why should we worry?" said Victor Dawson, board chairman, after the meeting.

Lorne Thomson, trustee, said today the board had taken full precautions to protect the water supply. He said "we feel assured that we will not be disturbed without due notice, and that's good enough for us."

Mr. Dawson said the board was doing its best to reach an amicable settlement of the water question and is continuing negotiations with the federal department of transport and city of Victoria. (The city had offered Brentwood water from Elk Lake at 10 cents per 1,000 gallons, but Brentwood would have to pump the water from the lake.)

Mr. Dawson said the transport department is still operating the Elk Lake pump. It had notified the board that it would close its operations March 31.

NO INCREASE

Mr. Dawson gave the impression that under any new set-up there would be no increase in water rates.

Auditor R. W. Hamblett's report showed revenue from the sale of water in 1955 amounted to $7,910.67, less than $1,861.05 paid to the transport department for water.

Original installation of the waterworks system cost $84,765.60, while the Sea Drive and Benvenuto extension was completed at a cost of $32,240.43. Salaries and wages paid by the board for the year totaled $2,142.

Brentwood Stages Night Of Recreation

BRENTWOOD — Brentwood Community Club's fourth annual display night, held Saturday, was a colorful affair descriptive of the outstanding recreational activities of the district.

The display, staged in the Community Hall on Wallace Drive, opened with a grand march featuring boys and girls in uniform and costume of the various teams which have figured in Pro-Rec sports, softball, basketball and square dancing throughout the season.

Don McMuldrough, president of the Community Club, acted as master of ceremonies. The stage of the auditorium was lined with cups and other trophies won by teams and individual athletes during the past season.

SCROLL PRESENTED

An interesting feature of the evening was presentation of an illuminated scroll in appreciation of the work of the club coaches and instructors, listing the following names: Rom Knott, Muriel Knott, Mrs. Joyce MacDonald, Stan Bickford, Harry Peard, James Creed, Clark Sluggett, Al Vickers, Al Burdon, Miss Esther May Burdon, William Lukinuk, Mrs. Mary Delamere, G. King, Mrs. Waldron, Mrs. Davidson, Clarence Covell and Victor Dawson.

The display concluded with a basketball game between boys' and girls' bantam teams and a square dancing session.

CD Group Launches Evacuation Plans

METCHOSIN — An emergency evacuation plan for the Metchosin area was launched at the April meeting of the Albert Head-Metchosin Civil Defence Group.

Residents would be directed to the western end of Kangaroo Road, where some natural protection is available.

S. D. Ranns, CD officer for the area, spoke of the importance of emergency kits, including foods, liquids and warm clothing.

LANGFORD—Volunteer Fire Department here will extend fire protection to residents of Latoria Road between Wishart and Happy Valley Roads, as a result of a petition taken among residents.

The petition was taken after Langford firemen refused to attend a Latoria Road fire because the burning home was outside the Langford fire protection district.

Men's Cakes Sell Quickly In Sooke Stunt

SOOKE—Angel cakes sold for from $2 to $5 each at an auction sale held in Gibsons' Shopping Centre Saturday afternoon following a men's cake baking contest sponsored by Gibsons'.

All proceeds and prize money went to the organizations sponsoring the contestants.

B.C. Tory Hits Out At Highway Project

(From Times News Services)

Legislation aimed at producing a paved Trans-Canada Highway by the end of 1960 has been introduced after day-long Opposition argument that federal aid on the project doesn't go far enough.

Opposition criticism on a resolution preliminary to the government bill culminated Monday night in an amendment put forward by Davie Fulton (PC-Kamloops).

He proposed that provinces building the 4,580-mile highway be allowed to choose the section of the road on which a special 90-per-cent federal contribution will apply.

His amendment was defeated 74 to 38, all Opposition parties supporting it against the Liberal majority. The resolution then was adopted without formal opposition and the bill was introduced.

The 90-per-cent federal contri-

Discriminate Among Provinces

The bill also seeks Commons approval for an increase to $250,000,000 from $150,000,000 in the maximum federal commitment.

Mr. Fulton said the federal plan would discriminate among provinces. British Columbia had completed the most expensive sections in the mountains and the extra federal aid would apply to less costly parts of the B.C. route. Other provinces had built easy sections first and would get the 90-per-cent help in meeting their toughest sections.

Mr. Winters replied that each province will be able to take advantage of the 90-per-cent gap-closing formula with great advantage.

Ross Thatcher (Ind., Moose Jaw-Lake Centre) urged creation of a national highways commission to administer greatly expanded federal highways aid. Under the commission, the central government should pay $200,000,000 a year for the next 10 years on highway building.

Mr. Thatcher said his proposed national highways commission should undertake a four-point program to:

1. Provide funds on not less than a 50-50 basis for provincial construction of major east-west and north-south roads.
2. Help maintain the roads.
3. Devise a master plan or highway development.
4. Standardize construction and engineering specifications for highway building across the country.

Howard Green (PC, Vancouver Quadra) said he doubts the highway bill will be completed even by 1960. The provinces deserved criticism for not making more progress, but the whole program had bogged down in in-

Politicians Fail 'Armed Truce World' - Simonds

Whole Nation Must Organize

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lt. Gen. Guy Simonds, former chief of staff of the Canadian Army, says he firmly believes Canada is unprepared either for war or for preventing war.

"There is no political leader in this country who will face up to the matter of organizing our national manpower—which goes far deeper than simply the conscription of all the youth of the country into the navy, army and air force," he said.

"We should not merely copy the conscription methods of the United States," he said in an interview, "for many features of the American system would not be adaptable. We must develop our own methods of military service."

"I do not think war is inevitable. But I am convinced a change of the Communist regimes to a more moderate way of thinking is only going to come about over a very long period of time."

"And to hold the ring in the meantime we are going to have to live in terms of armed truce—not for a few years but probably for a lifetime."

"If we were properly prepared for thermo-nuclear attacks, everyone would have a card telling him what the nation expects him to do in a crisis."

Gen. Simonds was here to address the Vancouver Institute of International Affairs Monday night.

In Victoria's Empress Hotel Wednesday he will address two Canadian Club luncheons on "Some Reflections on Canada's Defence Problem."

Charge of driving without a driver's licence brought a fine of $25 or five days in jail for Hugh R. Hoyle, HMCS Naden, when he appeared in Esquimalt police court Monday.

'IN GOD WE TRUST' NOW U.S.A. MOTTO

WASHINGTON (AP)—"In God we trust" is not the official motto of the United States, but the House of Representatives decided Monday it should be.

The house passed and sent to the senate a four-line joint resolution to establish as the "national motto" the phrase which has been appearing on coins since 1865.

Suspect Played Russian Roulette Murder Jury Told

VANCOUVER (CP)—One of two men accused of the murder of a Vancouver policeman played "Russian roulette" a few hours before the slaying, it was testified Monday.

The testimony came from Mrs. Noreen Carey, common-law wife of the other accused man.

James Carey, 27, and Joe Gordon, 34, are being tried before Mr. Justice A. M. Manson for the murder of Constable Gordon Sinclair Dec. 7.

Mrs. Carey in her third day on the witness stand said Gordon played Russian roulette with a .38 calibre pistol at her home on the night of the killing.

She said Gordon removed all the bullets from the gun but one and spun the cylinder before pointing the gun at his head. Gordon told her the weight of the single bullet carried it into a non-firing position.

The Crown alleges the fatal bullets were fired from a .38 calibre Webley gun.

Robert Smith, self-employed trucker, said Carey and Gordon jumped into his car in the area where the murder was committed shortly after Smith heard "what I thought were shots."

Smith told the court he saw a man "carrying a rifle" come out of a house near the spot where his car was parked. The man got into a small automobile and drove away.

REPORT DUE IN TWO MONTHS

New System Likely In Federal Paroles

OTTAWA (CP)—Establishment of a federal parole board may figure prominently among the recommendations of a special committee that has just completed almost 2½ years' study of Canada's parole methods.

The committee headed by Mr. Justice Gerald Fauteux of the Supreme Court of Canada is preparing its report to Justice Minister Garson who asked in October, 1953, for an "unrestricted" inquiry into parole, remission and related matters.

The report may be ready in about two months, it was learned Monday. It will be up to Mr. Garson to decide whether it should be made public. Normally such reports are for a minister's personal information.

A number of briefs to the four-man committee urged establishment of a parole board to replace the present system under which paroles are granted by the governor-general on the solicitor-general's recommendation. The minister acts after investigation of each case by the justice department's remission service.

The committee also is expected to deal with the question of a higher rate of probation. Many public figures, including Ontario Liberal Senator David Croll, have asked that the number of prisoners receiving tickets of leave from federal penitentiaries be boosted wherever possible.

The justice department's remission service has undergone extensive reorganization and has eased its policies somewhat in the last two or three years.

Last year, 1,345 tickets of leave were granted, up from 906 in 1954. There are roughly 5,500 men in federal penitentiaries.

Legion Helps

EDMONTON (CP)—The Alberta Command of the Canadian Legion announced Monday it will grant $100 each to Alberta Victoria Cross winners attending the Victoria Cross centennial celebration in London, June 26.

Conciliation Officer

Conciliation officer W. T. McLaughlin has been appointed by the labor department to act in a contract dispute between nine Victoria automobile firms and more than 300 members of Automotive Maintenance Workers' Federal Union local 151.

Employees are asking a 31½-cent-an-hour increase on present journeyman mechanics' rate of $1.78½ an hour, which would make the rate 10 cents an hour above Vancouver's $2.

Present minimum rate in other classifications is $1.06 an hour.

IRISH RETURN MASTERPIECE

LONDON (AP)—Irish Nationalists last night returned the £10,000 painting they stole from the Tate Gallery last Thursday. It was not damaged.

The painting was taken to the Irish embassy by an unidentified woman, then handed over to Sir John Rothenstein, director of the Tate Gallery.

TEACHER SHORTAGE ACUTE

More Adults Than Children Attend School in Kitimat

By NORMAN CRIBBEN
Times Business Editor
KITIMAT—This fast-growing aluminum centre faces a serious shortage of teachers created by the rapid increase in its juvenile population.

The shortage is partly due to the high birthrate among Kitimat's 8,500 inhabitants; partly to the expanding army of workers, and the influx of workers' families.

67 NEEDED

Only three years ago the single school house at Kitimat had a staff of five teachers. This has now grown to 35 and by next fall a total of 67 teachers will be needed.

"We have 800 students at present," Reeve P. W. Hallman said. "Within the next six years we expect to have at least 4,000 school-age children."

"We shall also need new buildings. Our school building program budgets an expenditure of $750,000 every year for the next three or four years."

Because of the many Europeans in Kitimat, night classes in English draw large numbers of smelter workers and their wives.

"We have actually more adults going to school than children," Reeve Hallman declared. "And the success of the classes is proven—hundreds of people who spoke little English when they came here a few months ago now converse fluently in our difficult language."

"Some of them write English so well that they are now able to contribute to our company newspaper, 'The Kitimat Ingot.'"

BEST PLANNED

Town planning is another major problem in Kitimat. When present plans materialize it will be one of the best laid-out cities in the world, with streets, paths and sidewalks designed to segregate pedestrians and children from auto traffic.

"This means that street accidents will be practically eliminated," says Jim Dudley, who is employed by the Aluminum Company of Canada as manager of Kitimat's real estate development.

CITY CENTRE

All parking will be off street. There will be a 100-acre city centre embracing a 200-room hotel, a municipal hall and a theatre. Two separate shopping centres are planned for what are called neighborhoods A and B.

Neighborhood A, comprising 1,300 family units, was built for workers employed in the first two potlines at the smelter. Neighborhood B, now under construction, will house workers on potlines three and four (number three went into production last week).

NEW CHURCHES

Seven or eight churches are planned and one of them, that of the Anglican community, is already rising on the outskirts of the city centre.

Most of the buildings in British Columbia's newest city will be limited to five or six storeys but there will be a main office building rising to eight storeys. "Because of the sand subsoll here, we think it inadvisable to build any higher than eight storeys," Jim Dudley said, "and even then our buildings will have to be pile driven."

So far the Aluminum Company has spent something like $250,000 on town planning, though the actual building is undertaken by outside contractors.

MASTER PLAN

A master plan for the future residential, commercial and industrial growth of Kitimat, prepared by the town planning consultants, is being implemented by a zoning by-law passed by the municipality.

Kitimat is therefore a planned community with adequate provision for roads, schools, parks, residential, commercial and industrial areas.

Occupying temporary premises in the smelter area are the Hudson's Bay Company, the Royal Bank of Canada, Bank of Montreal, a privately operated cafe, a travel bureau and a photographic and sporting goods store.

There is also a beer parlor seating 700 persons.

A number of concerns have established premises in the service centre, including a builder's supply company, a commercial hotel, a dairy, a garage, a tire shop, a plumbing business and a printing shop where the weekly newspaper the Kitimat Northern Sentinel is published. The municipality of Kitimat is administered by a reeve and six councillors and a municipal manager responsible to the council.

Water Negotiations Stall at Brentwood

'Why Worry, We're Still Getting Water' Says Dawson; No Rate Increase Foreseen

BRENTWOOD—Trustees of Brentwood Water Board were able to report little change in negotiations for a steady water supply when they addressed ratepayers Monday night at the W.I. Hall here.

The board draws water from Elk Lake, and has been endeavoring to secure it as a permanent source. A large crowd of water ratepayers was on hand for the report, given at the annual meeting of the district.

"We are still getting water, aren't we? Why should we worry?" said Victor Dawson, board chairman, after the meeting.

Lorne Thomson, trustee, said today the board had taken full precautions to protect the water supply. He said "we feel assured that we will not be disturbed without due notice, and that's good enough for us."

Mr. Dawson said the board was doing its best to reach an amicable settlement of the water question and is continuing negotiations with the federal department of transport and city of Victoria. (The city had offered Brentwood water from Elk Lake at 10 cents per 1,000 gallons, but Brentwood would have to pump the water from the lake.)

Mr. Dawson said the transport department is still operating the Elk Lake pump. It had notified the board that it would close its operations March 31.

NO INCREASE

Mr. Dawson gave the impression that under any new set-up there would be no increase in water rates.

Auditor R. W. Hamblett's report showed revenue from the sale of water in 1955 amounted to $7,910.67, less than $1,861.05 paid to the transport department for water.

Original installation of the waterworks system cost $84,765.60, while the Sea Drive and Benvenuto extension was completed at a cost of $32,240.43. Salaries and wages paid by the board for the year totaled $2,142.

Brentwood Stages Night Of Recreation

BRENTWOOD — Brentwood Community Club's fourth annual display night, held Saturday, was a colorful affair descriptive of the outstanding recreational activities of the district.

The display, staged in the Community Hall on Wallace Drive, opened with a grand march featuring boys and girls in uniform and costume of the various teams which have figured in Pro-Rec sports, softball, basketball and square dancing throughout the season.

Don McDuldroch, president of the Community Club, acted as master of ceremonies. The stage of the auditorium was lined with cups and other trophies won by teams and individual athletes during the past season.

John Tisdale, M.L.A. and Gordon Fynn praised the recreational achievements of the youngsters and enthusiasm of the leaders.

SCROLL PRESENTED

An interesting feature of the evening was presentation of an illuminated scroll in appreciation of the work of the club coaches and instructors, listing the following names: Ron Knott, Muriel Knott, Mrs. Joyce MacDonald, Stan Bickford, Harry Peard, James Creed, Clark Sluggett, Al Vickers, Al Burdon, Miss Esther May Burdon, William Lukinuk, Mrs. Mary Delamere, G. King, Mrs. Waldron, Mrs. Davidson, Clarence Covell and Victor Dawson.

The display concluded with a basketball game between boys' and girls' bantam teams and a square dancing session.

CD Group Launches Evacuation Plans

METCHOSIN — An emergency evacuation plan for the Metchoshin area was launched at the April meeting of the Albert Head-Metchoshin Civil Defence Group.

Residents would be directed to the western end of Kangaroo Road, where some natural protection is available.

S. D. Ranns, CD officer for the area, spoke of the importance of emergency kits, including foods, liquids and warm clothing.

Get Fire Protection

LANGFORD—Volunteer Fire Department here will extend fire protection to residents of Latoria Road, as a result of a petition taken among residents.

The petition was taken after Langford firemen refused to attend a Latoria Road fire because the burning home was outside the Langford fire protection district.

Men's Cakes Sell Quickly In Sooke Stunt

SOOKE—Angel cakes sold for from $2 to $5 each at an auction sale held in Gibson's Shopping Centre Saturday afternoon following a men's cake baking contest sponsored by Gibsons.

All proceeds and prize money went to the organizations sponsoring the contestants.

Winners were Wm. Pitre, sponsored by the Evening Guild, Presbyterian Church, who won $25; Capt. P. W. de P. Taylor, Women's Auxiliary, Canadian Legion, $15; Jack Keating, Sooke P.T.A., $10. A special prize of $10 went to 12-year-old Kenneth Poirier, Jordan River Cubs, whose cake sold for the top price of $5.

Proceeds from the sale of the 17 cakes amounted to $47.25. Cakes were baked under supervision from one standard recipe.

Judges for the contest were Mrs. Walter Conder and Mrs. Eric Butler of Sooke, and Mrs. Louis Fatt of Jordan River.
